VOL. 1. NO. 226 PRICE FIVE CENTS

A VERY CLEVER CAPTURE

IT WAS MADE BY A DETECTIVE, MR. KEMP, AT OTTERVILLE, FRIDAY MORNING.

MAN BROKE INTO EXPRESS OFFICE

Said to Be a Son of the Owner of the Harrington Hotel at Carthage, Mo.—Released on a Bond of $2,500 Saturday.

Otterville had a sensation Friday regarding which the Otterville Mail of that day had the following:

"For some time a gang of sharpers have been operating with the railroads and express companies by ordering jewelry and other costly goods to be sent to a station C. O. D., and then breaking into the depot and stealing the package.

"Such a package was received here some days ago, addressed to C. N. Steinsen, and on which was a collection of $100. The company was notified and Detective Kemp was sent here to watch.

"About 4 o'clock this morning a man who registered at the hotel last night as C. A. Wood entered the depot through the south office window. As he raised up, after getting inside, he was struck on the head by Detective Kemp with a billy, rendering him unconscious.

"He was then captured and on his person was found a large revolver and some burglar's tools.

"At this writing he is being held at the hotel here."

Saturday the Democrat-Sentinel learned that the capture was quite an important one. The prisoner was taken Friday afternoon to Boonville, where it was ascertained that his name is Walter Harrington, and his father is the proprietor of the Harrington hotel at Carthage, Mo.

The prisoner is about 40 years old, but he was non-committal as to his past history. He was accorded a preliminary hearing at Boonville Saturday morning and held for the next term of court on a bond of $2,500.

His father wired to the Central National bank at Boonville to furnish bond for his son, and he was released from custody, but it is understood that detectives of both the American and Pacific Express companies are now in search of him.

Thursday night a place of business at Syracuse was broken into and about $90 worth of goods stolen. The belief is that Harrington did this job also.

H. L. White, route agent for the Pacific Express company, was seen by a Democrat-Sentinel reporter Saturday and defined Harrington as the shrewdest criminal he (Mr. White) had met in twenty years.

"I have been connected with the Pacific Express company for twenty years," remarked Mr. White, "and I have never yet seen one man who ranks with Harrington. He is a man who poses as an honest, upright person and yet the plot he laid was done with the greatest skill.

"Every step he made he covered up and his actions plainly show that he is one of the keenest criminals in the country."

Harrington, according to Mr. White, is a son of Major C. O. Harrington, owner of the Harrington hotel at Carthage, Mo. His relatives are well to do people, while he himself has always been considered an ideal young man.

Mr. White says that for several weeks the agent for the Missouri Pacific at Otterville has been receiving letters, inquiring about certain express packages, consigned to different names at Otterville.

Each letter bore a different signature, although the style of every letter was identically the same, whether it was written by pencil or with type-writer.

Last week the attention of Mr. White was called to the numerous letters, and after a careful perusal of them, Mr. White came to the conclusion that an attempt was being made to rob the depot on a plan similar to the robbery that occurred at Sheldon, Mo., last November, when a revolver was stolen.

Accordingly N. P. Kemp, special agent for the Missouri Pacific, was notified and the latter stationed Walter Kemp, also of the secret service, at Otterville, instructing him to remain there until the man showed up and take no chances in letting him get away.

Early Friday morning the stranger, who later developed to be Harrington, appeared. He raised a window in the depot and attempted to enter, when Detective Kemp placed him under arrest. Harrington objected and in resisting was clubbed with a "billy" into submission. He was searched and a revolver found on his person.

Friday Harrington was taken to Boonville and given a preliminary hearing and released on a $2,500 bond. Immediately he disappeared and has not been found since.

The arrest of Harrington caused the utmost surprise. "I myself have known Harrington for some time," said Mr. White, "and he is also acquainted with Mr. Kemp, and neither of us would suspect him of the crime."

Mr. White stated that instantly when Major Harrington learned of his son's arrest he prepared bond for him, showing that he did not want his son to remain in jail.

WERE WILD OVER TAFT

PEOPLE DOWN IN THE TERRITORY GAVE HIM A ROYAL WELCOME.

TRAIN WAS DELAYED FOR HOURS

Towns Through Which He Passed Insisted on His Stopping and Receiving Their Greetings—Spoke Saturday Night.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 24.—Oklahoma City was ready bright and early this morning to receive Secretary William H. Taft upon his arrival here and give him a hearty and hospitable welcome on his first visit to the new state. His train was due to arrive at 8:15 o'clock, but did not arrive until 1:30 this afternoon. There was keen disappointment when this announcement was made in hotel lobbies by the reception committee.

"Secretary Taft's train is four hours and forty-five minutes late. Delayed by the demand of cities along his route that he speak, if only for a moment."

The train was hours late. These moments ran into hours, and upset the plans for the great morning ovation that awaited the secretary of war.

The country brass bands that had been awaiting the incoming train prepared to play their best and noisiest music, were under full steam and found it difficult to control the pressure. Farmers and their wives stood on the sidewalks and gazed at the buildings, disappointed at not seeing at the appointed time "the big man who sat on the lid" when President Roosevelt went to Panama. But all the time flags and banners were falling in waves from the buildings and spanning the streets, their colors brightening in the splendid sunshine that came from a clear sky, softened at the horizon with the first haze of Oklahoma's autumn.

Luckily, the delay in the coming of Secretary Taft broke no plans in which the great crowd of visitors were interested. The street parade was scheduled for about 3 o'clock, to be followed by his public reception at Convention hall later in the afternoon, and finally by his address at 8 o'clock in the evening, all of which took place according to program.

Politicians Had No Chance. Luncheons to be attended by invited guests and meetings with republican state politicians and campaign managers, to have been held in the afternoon, were abandoned of necessity, but the men and women, boys and girls who came miles "just to see Secretary Taft" cared nothing for these things and were indifferent to the plans of those who had made great preparation to prove that they were the "original Taft men."

Not the Unknown Dead Boy.

Pearl James, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward James, former Sedalians, now of Denison, Texas, referred to in a local print Saturday as the person probably killed by a Katy train last Thursday night a week ago, has been visiting at St. Louis for several weeks, in company with Tom Sands and Blaine Walker and returned here the middle of last week.

SECRETARY ROOT BETTER

MULDOON, FAMOUS TRAINER OF MEN, REPORTS ON CONDITION OF SECRETARY OF STATE.

GREAT BENEFIT FROM HEALTH FARM

Many Other Famous Men Have Taken the Training Given at Resort, Among Them the Genial Depew, of Insurance Fame.

New York, Aug. 24.—Reports from Muldoon's sanitarium at White Plains had it today that Secretary Root, who had been a patient for some time without the knowledge of official Washington, had recovered to such an extent as to be beyond the invalid class in the estimation of "Dr." William Muldoon, and was so far on the road to recovery as to be placed above the rank of convalescent. After Secretary Root has passed the medicine ball for two weeks more and taken the prescribed run on the roads about White Plains every morning he will be fit, according to the opinion of "Dr." Muldoon, to take his place in the cabinet again.

During Secretary Root's retirement at Muldoon's place of recuperation, he is not without direct communication with Oyster Bay, according to a very pleasant story that was sent down from White Plains this morning. Accounts differed. Either the president had left his seclusion at Sagamore Hill for a run across the sound to White Plains on a visit to his secretary or the secretary had forsaken the medicine ball for a hasty trip across the sound to Sagamore Hill. "Dr." Muldoon, having an eye to the future of his sanitarium, announced that Mr. Roosevelt had deigned to visit the Muldoon sanitarium during the temporary seclusion of Mr. Root. This report of "Dr." Muldoon was strenuously denied from Oyster Bay.

In passing, it was pointed out that Mr. Roosevelt could not well appear at the well known training quarters of pugilists and members of the cabinet without being recognized and hailed under his true name. The intimation was also given that there was no immediate necessity for a conference between Mr. Roosevelt and his chief of cabinet so pressing as to bring the president across the sound to a sanitarium for nerves. It is announced by those who have the interests of "Dr." Muldoon's sanitarium at heart that Mr. Root's course of study at "Dr." Muldoon's is not as severe as that of the average summer school. "Dr." Muldoon gave out a statement today concerning the course through which he was putting the secretary of state. He said:

"When Mr. Root first arrived he was not allowed to transact any business, but now I allow him to see his private secretary two hours during the day and transact such business as he can in that period. Mr. Root's condition was really bad when he first arrived, but now he looks years younger. I cannot tell you the exact treatment that I am giving him, but in fifteen days at the most, I expect to have him in real prime shape."

Those who know Mr. Muldoon and his radical course of treatment at his White Plains sanitarium said today that Secretary Root was getting nothing that had not been handed out to well known men before. Ex-Ambassador Joseph H. Choate once went over the hurdles that Mr. Root is now taking; also Senator Chauncey Depew. Both these patients survived the treatment and were better for it, say those who know "Dr." Muldoon.

BOYS WERE ACQUITTED

Costs in Case Assessed Against the Prosecuting Witness.

The cases of Albert McGee and Walter Davis, boys charged with disturbing the peace of J. J. Murrell, a Missouri Pacific fireman, and wife, were called for trial in Judge Rickman's court Saturday afternoon. A. L. Shortridge represented the defendants, while H. D. Dow prosecuted. A jury heard the case, and after the evidence and arguments had been finished, returned a verdict of not guilty.

Acting on instructions from Mr. Dow, the costs were taxed against the prosecuting witness, the total amount being $28.50, assessed as follows: Constable's fee, $12; justice of the peace's fee, $5; jurymen's fee, $4.50; witnesses' fee, $7.

Meeting of the County Court.

The judges of the Pettis county court met in special session Saturday and adjudged Mary Jane Lambeth, a 24-year-old woman of Houstonia, insane and ordered her removed to the Nevada insane asylum.

The court also ordered bids to be received for building a prisoners' stockade on the Missouri Pacific land just north of the tracks and between Ohio and Lamine avenues.

Lady Maccabees Move.

Queen City hive No. 7, L. O. T. M., have moved from the K. of P. hall over the Democrat-Sentinel office to the R. T. J. hall. The first meeting in the new location will be held next Thursday evening.

George Barnett's Baby Boy.

Born, Friday morning, August 23, to the wife of George Barnett, son of George W. Barnett, a son, who will be known as George Barnett, junior.

MAKE CANVASS OF CITY

TO DECIDE WHAT SHALL BE SEDALIA DAY AT THE COMING STATE FAIR.

BE DECIDED BY A MAJORITY VOTE

All of Specially Designated Days Are to Be Thoroughly Advertised, So An Early Decision is Desired.

To the Democrat-Sentinel.

Since writing you a week ago on that subject of "Sedalia Day" at the coming Missouri state fair, our citizens have discussed the matter quite generally, but because of the fact that "what's everybody's business is nobody's business," no concerted or definite action has been taken.

The fair board meets here next Friday, at which time the program for fair week will be arranged and the designation of the several days agreed upon, hence Sedalia should definitely state her desires at that time.

In order to secure a definite and authentic expression from the business men of the city, Secretary Mellor, of the Business Men's association, a representative of the Retail Clerks' association and the undersigned will make a canvass of the business houses next Tuesday, Aug. 27, starting in the morning, and will endeavor to see every merchant and manufacturer, as nearly as possible, and will submit these questions:

1. Do you favor having a "Sedalia Day" at the Missouri state fair? If so, what day of the week do you prefer?

2. If a majority of the business men want to observe "Sedalia Day" at the state fair, do you promise to close your place of business from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. of said day.

It is hoped that all will give this subject full consideration and be prepared to give positive, definite answers, when called upon. The task is a "labor of love" on the part of this committee; they donate their time and must work rapidly.

I will again suggest that all of the specially designated days will be thoroughly advertised and exploited by the publicity department of the fair. A "Sedalia Day" will give this city a large amount of valuable free publicity. But whatever action is taken should represent the wishes of the majority to insure harmony and enthusiastic co-operation.—M. V. Carroll.

"HE WANTED NO 'FARGE'"

Judge Rickman Would Not Stand for "Suggestion."

The case of George Umbles, a negro boy, charged with cutting with a knife Lanny Hughes, was called for trial in Judge Rickman's court Saturday morning and put off until 2 p. m., then postponed until 10 a. m. next Wednesday, owing to the absence of the prosecuting attorney.

"I'd clear this boy at trial, but in order to save expenses, give him one day in jail, judge, and we'll be satisfied," remarked Attorney Bowron, attorney for Umbles.

"I'll do nothing of the sort," responded the judge, "that'd be a farce," he continued, and the two exchanged words, finally agreeing to try the case Wednesday.

Sold Horse for $150.

John P. Warren yesterday sold to a St. Louis firm a fine 5-year-old driving horse for which he received $150.

THE STATE TRUANT LAW

ITS PROVISIONS ARE GIVEN, AS THE SCHOOLS OPEN SEPTEMBER 9.

WILL BE STRICTLY ENFORCED, TOO

Parents Who Have Permitted Their Children to Remain Out of School Should Take Timely Warning.

In view of the fact that the public schools will open Monday, September 9, the Democrat-Sentinel prints the provisions of the compulsory attendance law, as follows:

Every child between 8 and 14 years old, and between 14 and 16, when not regularly employed, must attend some day school at least half of the term each year.

No child can be excused on promise to attend; he must attend first half of school before being excused on that account.

Courts having jurisdiction (justices of the peace in rural districts and in cities having less than 50,000 population) may excuse children from attending school for the following reasons: (1) Parents can not supply proper clothing; (2) child is physically or mentally unable to attend; (3) no public school in two and one-half miles of the home; labor of child is necessary to support family; (5) child has completed the common school course.

No child between 8 and 14 can be employed in mine, factory, workshop or store unless excused for one of the five reasons, or has statement from the teacher that he has already attended half of the term for that school year.

It is the duty of attendance officers and district clerks to notify parents and guardians when children fail to comply with the provisions of the law.

The penalty for non-attendance falls on parent or guardian, and it is a maximum fine, $25, or imprisonment for ten days, one or both.

For illegal employment of a child, the employer is subject to a fine of $50 and costs.

Every school board shall publish this synopsis in a newspaper of the district, or post it in at least five public places ten days before school opens each year.

A ROW OVER A DEPOT

The People of Franklin Junction Are Indignant.

The residents of Franklin Junction are up in arms and are threatening to bring suit to compel the Katy to remove the depot back to the Junction from New Franklin, to which place it is being moved.

The people at the Junction say they have no depot whatever, and will not stand for such treatment.

The legal talent of the Katy, however, contends that they have no power whatever to compel the Katy to again remove the depot, as Franklin Junction and New Franklin are incorporated as one town, with one city administration.

Took Insane Woman to Asylum.

Sheriff Sprecher went to Nevada last night, accompanying to the state asylum Mary Lamberth, adjudged insane by the county court yesterday.

A BIG RAIL ROAD DEAL

CHANGE OF CHICAGO & ALTON OWNERSHIP MEANS ANOTHER BIG SYSTEM.

TO MERGE FOUR LARGE COMPANIES

Mr. Harriman and His Associates Were Not Consulted When the New Owners Bought the Property.

New York, Aug. 24.—The acquisition of the Chicago & Alton railroad by the St. Louis, Toledo & Western (the Clover Leaf) means the formation of a new system of railway with nearly 3,000 miles of track.

The Hawley interests which control the Clover Leaf and now the Chicago & Alton also control the Iowa Central and the Minneapolis & St. Louis. A compact system will be organized eventually of the four roads, having the following mileage: Clover Leaf.....541 miles Chicago & Alton.....970 miles Minneapolis & St. Louis.....799 miles Iowa Central.....569 miles

The new president of the system, when it is organized, probably will be Edwin Hawley, who is a financial factor in the Clover Leaf, together with T. P. Shonts, W. A. Read and Thomas H. Hubbard Associated with Mr. Hawley in the Chicago & Alton deal also is Henry E. Huntington, nephew of the late Collis P. Huntington. Hawley some ten years ago was in charge of traffic for the Southern Pacific under C. P. Huntington. T. H. Hubbard and Henry Huntington represent all that is left of the old C. P. Huntington power in Wall street.

Until the four roads are organized into one system, the management of the different lines will be made harmonious and close traffic relations will be established among them. There will be no objection to the merger inasmuch as the lines are not parallel and competing.

Clover Leaf officers will succeed Rock Island officials of the Alton. Very probably President S. M. Felton of the Alton, who has been retained in office during both Rock Island and Union Pacific control of the road, will retire.

"We have had no relations with Mr. Felton," said a director of the Clover Leaf today. "On the other hand, our relations are very intimate with and we have every confidence in Mr. Shonts, the president, and Mr. Ross, the vice president, in charge of operation of the Clover Leaf. In all probability one of these men will take Mr. Felton's place."

Neither Mr. Harriman nor any of his associates were consulted in regard to the Alton transaction and the formal announcement was as much of a surprise to them as to any one else in the financial district. What Mr. Harriman will do with the Union Pacific's minority interest seemed to interest no representatives of either the buying or selling company.

HAS STRIKE BEEN SETTLED?

Rumor Says "Yes;" Master Mechanic McGraw Says "Nay."

So far, no notification of a settlement of the strike of the Missouri Pacific tinners, coppersmiths and pipefitters has been received by company officials in this city, although the grievance committee of the strikers has been at St. Louis during the past week.

"There are wild rumors afloat about a settlement being made, but I have heard nothing of it from headquarters, and I think I would hear if there was any truth in the report," remarked M. J. McGraw, master mechanic for the company, to a Democrat-Sentinel reporter Saturday.

A report was circulated Saturday that the strike had been settled, but it would require a week to finish the details. The rumor lacked confirmation.

Child Is Improving.

The six-year-old son of "Dick" Carver, a street car conductor, who is suffering from appendicitis, is getting along fairly well.

Mr. Coats Much Better.

J. J. Coats, who has been bedfast for several weeks with dysentery, is getting along very nicely.

DISPOSITION OF THE EDDY CASE.

The dismissal of the famous suit of the "next friends" against the advisers and religious associates of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy for an accounting of her property will occasion more surprise than anything else. To one element, critics of Christian Science and disbelievers in the claims advanced by and for it, the dropping of the case will bring disappointment. Their ideas had led them to hope that the outcome of the suit would be to expose her leadership as fictitious, her mental and physical condition as refuting her teachings, and, in short, to discredit her theology generally.

To others the closing proceedings in the court would seem to indicate a decided victory for the defendants. It would appear from ex-Senator Chandler's statement in dismissing the suit, General Streeter's reply thereto and the comments of Christian Science leaders at Concord on the sudden turn of events, that the next friends had discovered their inability to make out a case and had been forced by the prospect of failure to abandon the proceedings. If this view is correct it confirms the claim that Mrs. Eddy is mentally and physically competent to manage her property interests, and furthermore, that there has been no misuse or wrongful conversion of her funds by those who surround her, and who in all probability influence her in the conduct of worldly affairs.

It is but natural that Mrs. Eddy should devote her property, both before and after her death, to the advancement of the religion she found.

Whether her property is handled mostly by those to whom she may choose to commit its care, and whether it is devoted strictly to the uses she intended, can depend only on the moral rectitude and faithfulness of her trustees and executors. It is her undoubted right, however, provided she is mentally competent, to create such a trusteeship, regardless of how it may be carried out or the hopes of relatives.

The heirs at law of Mrs. Eddy have previous to her death no legal rights in her property. The most that could have been accomplished by the present suit, had the claim of her incompetency been established, would have been to commit her property into the hands of the court for supervision and guardianship.

THE PUBLIC SUFFERS.

Only one thing seems absolutely certain about the strike of the telegraph operators, and that is that the public is getting the worst of it. The telegraph is peculiarly a public service corporation, and a strike of the busy-up lines is much the same thing to the business world as though there should be a general tie-up of the postal service.

The big telegraph companies will not suffer at all by the strike. It will merely be a question with them of paying a few dollars less in dividends, and the officials will not eat a meal less or smoke a cigar the poorer. The operators and their families may suffer a little, considerably, perhaps, if they lose. But the business world will suffer a great deal, and the trade of the whole country will be hurt.

Whether the demands of the striking operators are just or not, it is hard to say. The issue has not been clearly defined by either side. Both have indulged in the generalities of a man who is not quite sure of his case. But both the operators and the companies may be sure of one thing, and that they are driving the long-suffering public nearer to government ownership by their family row.

Of course, there is no immediate prospect of such a solution of the difficulty, but every dispute between labor and capital in which the public is hurt, drives that public nearer to experimenting with a remedy that may or may not be worse than the disease.

THE IMMUNITY BATH.

The immunity bath is a curious development in modern legal practice, and the department of justice is now carefully considering the case of the Chicago and Alton officials whose testimony made possible the prosecution resulting in the now famous $29,000,000 fine against the Standard Oil company.

It is true that the officials of the road were promised immunity from prosecution on condition of furnishing testimony against the Standard. But it now appears that the Alton was concerned in some railroad gobbling on its own account before the rebate complications with the Standard arose. Now comes the question whether the officials can, or more properly speaking, should be prosecuted for their part in this prior performance. It is just possible that the department will agree to let bygones be bygones. But the attorney general is studying over the matter carefully, and in spite of the immunity granted it on one count, the road may be called to answer on another.

A few years ago the Standard Oil company was commonly regarded as a soulless corporation, without feeling, but the heart-rending walls from 23 Broadway brought out by Judge Landis' fine show that it is not wholly devoid of emotion.

The striking telegraphers now talk about prosecuting the telegraph companies for transmitting messages through the mail. It would seem just about as reasonable to sue a man for eating with false teeth.

The peace conference at the Hague has assumed such strenuous shape that it looks as though some rude, warlike party might have to step in and separate the delegates.

The pamphlet just issued by the Standard Oil company only goes to show that its contempt for the law and the courts is all it has been reputed.

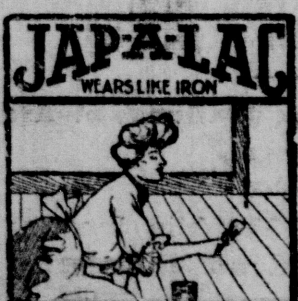

They are swearing in special deputies at Harrisburg now to keep the grafters from stealing the evidence that had been collected against them.

It has been a year of great calamities. The dispatches now announce that Geo. Bernard Shaw has escaped from drowning.

The reply of E. H. Harriman to the president's latest address, with annotations by Chancellor Day, is feverishly awaited.

It is to be presumed that Clyde Fitch is still ill, as no play has appeared from his scissors for at least two weeks.

AWARD SILVER TROPHY

FOR THE BEST FIVE-GAITED ANIMAL SHOWN AT THE STATE FAIR.

WILL BE VERY SPIRITED CONTEST

The Prize is Offered By the American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association and is Worth Striving For.

"My kingdom for a horse" is supposed to have been uttered by a monarch in dire need of the services of that noble animal. Maybe he was not an expert judge of the "points" now required in the prize saddle horse of the modern show ring, but there is no quibble over the fact that he wanted a horse.

All the world—rich and poor, enlightened and ignorant—adores a fine horse, especially a well bred, skillfully mannered saddle horse.

If any one doubts this, let him visit the Missouri state fair the first week in October and witness the contest for the magnificent silver trophy offered by the American Saddle Horse Breeders' association for the best 5-gaited saddle stallion, mare or gelding, to be held in front of the grand stand, and the enthusiasm of thousands of interested spectators will cause him to forget his doubts. As a producer of fine saddle horses, Missouri can hold her own against all the world and will prove it on that occasion.

Last year, in the contest for the silver cup offered by the same association for the best under-2-year-old saddle shown here, four states competing, Molly McDonald, owned by Robinson Bros., Armstrong, Mo., won the prize. But that age limit was a handicap.

This year the bars are laid down and the contest for the trophy, illustrated above, will attract a magnificent line-up of patrician saddlers.

Talk: Waters.

The Nicest Way He Knew.

A Boston physician has two young hopefuls, Master Tommy and Miss Jennie, the latter the elder by a year or two. A few days ago Master Tom came in, whimpering, with the complaint: "Papa, Jennie's got my roller skates on, and I want 'em, and she won't give 'em to me." "Did you ask her for them kindly, my son?" "Yes, papa." "Well, suppose you go back and try again. Ask her just the nicest way you know, and see if you can't get them." The youngster trotted out, and the father from the doorway heard him ask in wheedling tones: "Jennie, for God's sake, let me have them skates!"

We will skate on Thursday evening at Red Men's carnival in Liberty park. Be sure and be there and see the high-diving pony.

Keeping Youthful Things.

A busy woman once said that she never knew how much she could accomplish until she became the companion of her young sons, sharing their sports and limiting her own working hours to theirs. To-day they are young men and she looks like their sister. There are other young mothers of grown men and they are rather formidable rivals to younger women. The sons unconsciously make comparisons, generally in favor of mother. It is beautiful to "grow up" in this fashion with one's children, says a writer; to keep pace with them in new studies and new thoughts, something like a second youth. We are so quick to put away youthful things unless we have some such incentive to hold them.

ONE LABOR DAY SUNDAY

WILL BE OBSERVED AT FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH IN SEDALIA SEPT. 1.

THE REV. J. M. RUDY WILL PREACH

His Subject Will Be, "The Meaning of the Labor Movement to the Church of Christ," as Seen By the Speaker.

Many churches throughout the country are setting aside one Sunday in the year and devoting that day to the interests of organized labor.

This is certainly a most profitable idea. The first Sunday in September, the day before Labor day, will be observed by the First Christian church as "Labor Day Sunday."

On the evening of that day the pastor, Rev. J. M. Rudy, will speak on "The Meaning of the Labor Movement to the Church of Christ." An invitation will be extended to all wage workers to attend.

The Rev. Charles Stelzle, of the Presbyterian department of church and labor, makes the following comments upon this idea of setting apart one Sunday to be devoted to the interests of labor:

"Labor Day Sunday" ought to become a permanent feature of our "Christian year." Just as Memorial day and the several birthdays show our appreciation of those who rendered patriotic service, and just as the churches' "holy days" do honor to those who have served mankind spiritually, so "Labor Day Sunday" should be observed by the churches in honor of the millions of toilers who daily serve mankind in the humblest places of life. Last year as a result of an appeal by the Presbyterian department of church and labor to the Presbyterian ministers of the United States, more "labor" sermons were preached on the Sabbath before last Labor day than on any other single day in the history of the Christian church, and more union working men attended church on that Sabbath than on any other day since the advent of the modern trade union movement.

The committee having in charge the Bible school picnic of the First Christian church has recommended that the Bible school picnic be changed from Labor day to next Friday, Aug. 30. The committee makes this change so that none of the families of the church will be kept from Liberty park on Labor day.

It is the duty of families, and especially Christian families, to do everything they can to make Labor day one of great profit to all classes of people.

One way to do this is to attend the exercises at Liberty park. It tends to bring people into closer fellowship and to bridge the chasm between the classes and the masses.

The churches are in need of the working classes just as much as the working classes are in need of the church. Jesus Christ, were He here, would be greatly disappointed should He attend church and find that His fellow workmen were not in the pews. Indeed, might He not go where His fellow workmen are? It will be a great day for the church when she gets into sympathy and accord with the deepest longings and the highest aims of toiling humanity.

The parish priest of authority, Climbed up into a high church steeple.

To be nearer God, So that he might hand his word to the people.

And in sermon script He daily wrote

What he thought was sent from heaven.

And dropped this down on his people's heads,

Two times one day in seven.

In his age God said, "Come down and die."

And he called from out the steeple: "Where art Thou, Lord?"

And the Lord replied, "Down here among my people."

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER

BY CATHERINE MANN-PAYZANT

To the Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, Aug. 24.—To the many of us who must stay by our work during the hot months, the Labor day vacation comes with a welcome relief just at a time when we are tired and fagged out, and the few days are eagerly looked forward to in which we get our wind again for the coming autumn months. So to the woman with her wardrobe at tag ends from the dust and grime of the warm months some thought is necessary to get them into shape, to tide her over until the newer things are placed upon the counters.

One of the first things she thinks about is the traveling suit—is the one on hand good enough for another month or more. If not, it were well to get a new one that will do far into the fall, until the winter suit can be decided upon. If not in too bad a condition, then some furnishing will put it where it will serve the purpose. A suit that had already done good service during the summer was of a light weight serge, trimmed with white cloth, strapped with black soutache. It had become somewhat frayed around the bottom and the white cloth was dusty, while the braid was not at its best. The bottom was taken off, as the skirt being intended for an afternoon dress its length permitted this. It was steamed, cleaned, pressed and with new velvet on the bottom a very presentable skirt was turned out. The jacket was renewed with a new and heavier lining, the white vest was replaced with one of Persian silk showing many and brighter colors, which have that note so suitable to autumn days; the soutache was removed altogether and a fancy braid outlined the sides of the vest, the top of the cuffs, which were also of silk, and topped the silk collar. With this suit was worn a grass linen shirt-waist of the tailored style, a white turned-over collar and bright tie. A hat that had seen better days was cleaned, the ribbons renewed and a new quill bought, and when retimed seemed part of the costume better than an all new one would have done. The owner of the gown and costume hat made no mistake in going to an amateur for this work, for if there is one place above another where the experienced hand is needed it is in renewing an old costume, and she was well paid for her trouble, time and expense. That dress will do her through the autumn for some time to come as a second best dress and in the winter storms under the rain coat to save her better gown.

A second absolutely necessary garment for the woman to take with her is the long raincoat. Of course she can have or does have a silk rubber coat all very well, but the majority of women cannot afford these garments, and in the cheaper qualities they are not worth the buying. This same woman, who owned the dress described above, had also a mode colored covert raincoat, which she sent to the cleaners to be finished and cleaned. Of course, it goes without saying that she will take an umbrella, although it is astonishing what people will forget to provide themselves with when starting on a journey. An idea that gives some style and carries out the scheme of the suit is to have one good, strong umbrella, with a handle of good but plain quality, and of linen and silk cover, which is the most serviceable material, and then provide several covers to match the different costumes. It is an inexpensive thing to do and yet adds so much to the effectiveness of the costume.

The veil must be new and of the best, for an old or poor quality veil will spoil the tout ensemble of the whole outfit. Fashionable ones now are a medium mesh, rather strong, and edged with two rows of fine taffeta ribbon of a very narrow width. Heavy suede gloves of two buttons in a not too light color to match the gown will be most appropriate. It goes without saying, I suppose, that this costume should not be of the elbow variety—the sleeves should be long to the wrist, as should any traveling dress.

Shoes should be of the heavy soled kind and suitable for any tramping or walking excursions and able to stand the dampness. Stockings must match the costume. Have plenty of the small things, as collars, handkerchiefs, etc., so that at your journey's end with a little preparation you will be a presentable object to appear before your hostess or at whatever place you will abide in. Brightness and cheer are a part of a good appearance.

If you are to take only the few days over the Labor day extension another skirt of a dressy kind will be about all you need, without you are to be at some friends house where there will be many social events. Perhaps no skirt is so well fitted for this as a taffeta, without it be of the ordinary poor kind, but if good it is not too dressy for the street of an afternoon or with a fancy blouse too much of the "undress" to be worn in the evening. Or if one has a foulard in good condition it will serve the purpose just as well. If buying a new skirt that will do good service during the winter months a voile over a silk drop, although it has been worn so much, is yet a standby for any woman.

To this must be added, in addition to the underwear, a tailored shirt-waist or two, a black or white China silk waist, with a number of little accessories that will make many changes in the appearance, and one or two waists of the lingerie order. If one of fine lace can be added to the outfit there is little that the visiting lady cannot attend, except the most elaborate affairs that require the regulation dinner or evening dress. A simple little evening dress might be added if there were room or any thought that it would be needed. If one is going to a friend's house of course more would be required, but to a boarding house or hotel the traveling dress and extra skirt will serve all purposes with a few extra waists.

The attractions at the Red Men's carnival week are guaranteed to be of highest class and entertaining.

Not Labor Lost.

The safe bore a paper stating that there was nothing of value within. Nevertheless, the burglar blew the receptacle open, finding the statement correct. "Well," he remarked, gathering up his tools, "it's worth something to ascertain that there are still people who tell the truth."

GIVE VAUDEVILLE SHOW

MANAGER G. F. OLENDORF WILL ONCE EACH WEEK DURING COMING SEASON.

Klaw & Erlanger to Start Advanced Vaudeville Companies Out of Chicago Each Monday Night During Season.

An Associated Press dispatch sent out from Chicago Friday reads as follows:

"All legitimate theatres controlled and operated in the smaller cities by the Middle West Managers' association, after September 1, will devote three evenings of each week to high class vaudeville.

"This action was determined at a meeting here yesterday of the officers and board of directors of the association. It is said to be the result of the rapid encroachment of the five and ten cent theatres in the cities occupied by the association.

"The order will affect 280 playhouses in Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Nebraska, Arkansas, Missouri, Indian territory, Michigan and Illinois. Forty towns, outside of Chicago, in this state alone, will be affected."

Manager Geo. F. Olendorf, of the Sedalia theatre, informs the Democrat-Sentinel that the dispatch quoted is inaccurate in a couple of particulars.

The action taken was not by the Middle West Managers' association as an association, but rather as individuals, although it was recommended by the association.

Instead of three evenings each week being devoted to high class vaudeville, Mr. Olendorf says it will be one night each week, and it will start about November 1 instead of September 1.

Under the new arrangement, Klaw & Erlanger will start out of Chicago every Monday night an advanced vaudeville company that will play over the Illinois and Iowa circuit, and also the Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska circuit, in which latter Mr. Olendorf is interested in many playhouses.

The prices for the vaudeville shows will be 10, 20 and 30 cents, and the performances will be strictly first-class, being precisely the same as given in Chicago.

Mr. Olendorf believes the patrons in the different cities of the two circuits above named will appreciate high-class vaudeville once each week from November 1 until the close of the theatrical season, and the Democrat-Sentinel is of a like belief.

The dog and pony show is coming and will be with the Red Men's carnival next week.

All the Difference.

Attorney General Hadley of Missouri condemned in an address at Topeka before the State Bar association, certain trust methods. "I am sure," he said, "that we all want to see laws enacted that will give a square deal to everybody. We want, all over the world, as little as possible of that thing which is exemplified in the anecdote of the Syracuse widow. She lost every cent she possessed through the speculations of some dishonest bank officials. In discussing the matter with her, a minister said, soothingly: 'The thieves will be punished, maybe. They're committed for trial.' 'Yes,' said the widow, 'they're committed for trial, it is true; and my child and I are condemned to hard labor for life.'"

Good Substitute for Bell.

N. C. Goodwin, the actor, described at a dinner a Turkish bath that he once took in Mexico. "My rubber," said Mr. Goodwin, "was a strong man, a very strong man. He laid me on the slab and prodded and kneaded and punched and hammered me in a most emphatic way. At the end, after I had got up, he came behind me before my sheet was adjusted, and gave me on the bare back four resounding whacks with the palm of his enormous hand. 'What on earth did you do that for?' I panted, staggering. 'No offense, boss,' said the man. 'It was only to let the office know I was ready for the next bath. You see, the bell's out of order in this room.'"

LAND WEALTH OF NEW YORK.

Greater in Aggregate Than That of Many a Nation.

Few people realize the tremendous land wealth of New York city today, says a writer in Moody's Magazine. The total land valuations of the city by its recent census reached the enormous figure of $5,800,000,000; this is an increase of $400,000,000 in 1907 over 1906, and 1906, in turn, showed an increase of $480,000,000 over 1905. Within a decade the increase has been considerably over 100 per cent. New York real estate is today valued at more than one-twentieth of the entire wealth of the United States. It is greater than the entire wealth of many states and even of many foreign countries. It is 25 per cent. more than the entire wealth of Holland, Spain, Sweden and Norway; 50 per cent. more than Switzerland, Denmark or Portugal; it is one-third that of Italy, one-fourth that of Austria-Hungary, one-fifth that of Russia, one-seventh that of Germany, one-eighth that of France, one-tenth that of great Britain and Ireland. It is indeed an imperial city in an empire state.

A HISTORIC DOCUMENT

COL. VAN B. WISKER DISCOVERED A LETTER WRITTEN MANY YEARS AGO.

WANTED WEBSTER FOR PRESIDENT

Prominent Whigs Called Upon All Members of the Party to Support Massachusetts Senator for Party Nomination.

Col. Van B. Wisker, when preparing to remove from his country place to the city, discovered many relics that are of great interest to present day folks, and has sent the greater number to the public library.

Among others are old issues of New England newspapers, the Boston Transcript of March 13, 1857, the Essex Register of January 29, 1855, and the Boston Advertiser of February 5, 1855.

The Essex Register contains in full the oration of John Quincy Adams on the life and character of General De La Fayette, delivered before both houses of congress on December 31, 1824.

Also Col. Wisker found a copy of a letter written by the friends of Daniel Webster urging the Whigs of the country to support the Massachusetts senator for the presidential nomination. The letter was dated March 16, 1852, and reads as follows:

Sir: A very large number of the Whigs of the city of New York have nominated Daniel Webster to the office of president of the United States, subject to the decision of a national convention. Our object in now addressing you is respectfully but earnestly to solicit your co-operation with us to secure—first, the nomination of Mr. Webster by the Whig convention, and secondly, his election.

We are relieved from the necessity of informing you who Mr. Webster is, and what he has done for the Whig party and his country. For the last thirty years he has been almost constantly before the public eye—what he has done is well known—he has given immortality to Whig principles, and contributed largely to the renown of his country.

We regard it especially important at this time that Mr. Webster should fill the executive chair, because of the peculiar and very critical state of the world. In the countries of continental Europe, with few exceptions, every attempt to establish popular institutions has failed, and liberty has been crushed by military power. Recent intelligence assures us that France and Austria are combined of civil and religious freedom which shoots from the small and simple communities composing this interesting country was insignificant when Europe was possessed of equal freedom, but it is a beacon, in these times, to the nations that are in darkness. How then must the tyrants who govern those dark regions regard the light which beams from the great republic of the world, approximating nearer to them every day by the power of steam and improvement in the art of navigation?

In the events that may be anticipated, it is of the last importance that the executive head of the United States should thoroughly understand the rights of the republic as one of the family of nations and uphold them—its duties—and perform them. Such a man is Daniel Webster, and such the government of every civilized nation of the world knows him to be. The principles of the statesman who made the speech on the Greek revolution thirty years ago, and wrote the letter to Chevalier Hulsemann, are well known far beyond the limits of his own country.

Mr. Webster is the oldest and most distinguished member of the Whig party now on the theatre of action; he has always not only upheld its principles, but has advocated before the people with untiring zeal, an unsurpassed ability, every nominee of that party for the presidency. His popular addresses in 1840, 1844 and 1848 in support of General Harrison, and Mr. Clay shall have admirers.

It is now his turn to be supported for the same office; the claims presented by his long, faithful and distinguished services cannot, we respectfully suggest, be overlooked without impairing the strength and tarnishing the honor of the Whig party. Common fidelity demands of every Whig that he should uphold the man who has for so long time made him proud of his party, and that he should exert himself to place in the highest political position one who has elevated himself by his talents and industry to the highest pinnacle of fame.

What the country wants of its chief magistrate is patriotism, talents and experience in public affairs—a man who will employ all his personal and

HAD RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Two Sedalia Young Ladies Had a Narrow Escape.

Miss Lena Fritz, clerk at the Flower-Barnett Dry Goods Co., and her sister, Miss Lenora, sustained painful though not serious bruises and contusions in a runaway accident at Broadway and Ohio avenue at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The Misses Fritz were returning home in a livery rig, pulled by one horse. In the above locality the animal became frightened at something and made a dash forward, upsetting the vehicle and pitching the occupants to the pavement.

Miss Lena was the more seriously injured of the two, and was carried to Maywood hospital, where her injuries were pronounced of a slight nature, while Miss Lenora returned home.

The horse was stopped before any damage was done to the vehicle.

Sedalia Home From New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gold, who have been in New York a month or six weeks, arrived home Friday night.

Fred says they enjoyed the trip thoroughly and got over a big part of the metropolis, viewing the many points of interest. They went from Sedalia direct to Long Beach, L. I., and spent ten days at that resort. From there they went to New York, thence to Buffalo and Niagara, and came home by way of Cleveland. Miss Lynn Gold, who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Gold, returned to Missouri a week ago, but stopped at Jefferson City for a visit, coming home Friday night.

ENTERTAINED SATURDAY

Miss Charlotte Snow Had Friends at Her Home on West Seventh.

Miss Charlotte Snow, of West Seventh street, entertained a party of friends Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Irene Broadbuss, of Buncheon, Mo., who is visiting friends here.

Games furnished amusement for the guests and in a string tying contest, Miss Mary Bowers won the prize, a book, while the guest of honor received a box of stationery.

Refreshments of ices and cake were served.

The following young ladies were present: Misses Irene Broadbuss, Grace Campbell, Willa Alsbaugh, Stella Muckey, Rose Fowler, Helen Lodge, Roxanna Whipple, Gertrude Zoll, Linnie Camp, Florence Floyd, Mary Bowers and Bessie Bowers.

TRAIN THROUGH A TRESTLE

Engineer and Fireman Injured in an Accident Near Leeds.

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—Five cars of Missouri Pacific southbound freight train No. 157, engine 54, broke through a trestle, one mile south of Leeds, about noon today. Engineer Judy and Fireman White were hurt, one of them dangerously, it is said. The engine had passed safely across the trestle and the weight of the freight train caused it to give away. The train pulled the engine into the hollow after it had crashed through the trestle. The structure was ninety-four feet high.

The Man Who Shot "Jim" Cummings Has Gone Back to Higginsville.

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—David Edwards, the ex-guerrilla, 73 years old, who fired a shot yesterday at "Jim" Cummings, while they were at the Quantrell reunion in a grove near St. Clair station, was discharged this morning from the county jail.

A deputy marshal took him to the Union depot and placed on a Chicago and Alton train that left at 8:20 o'clock for Higginsville, Mo. He and Cummings live there in the Confederate home.

WON A GOLF GAME

Reuben J. Gentry Only One of Contestants to Make Regulation Score

An exciting game of golf was played on the links of the Sedalia Country club Saturday afternoon, the game being called at 4 o'clock. Reuben J. Gentry was the only one of twenty contestants to carry off the honors, he winning the prize, a driver or golf stick.

Twenty contestants entered the game and each one had to place three balls in the course, which is 150 yards wide, no ball to count unless it went no less than 135 yards from the starting point.

Mr. Gentry was the only one who could perform the feat and in accordance was awarded the prize.

Grand Final One Week "Round Up"

Of all small lots, odd sizes, etc., remaining from all our daily 5-hour sales in August at the price which was in effect for that day, which in each and every instance was the lowest ever known in this community. In nearly every case the lots were large (a necessity to secure the benefit of the low price), and while the sales were largely patronized, most of the lots were really too large to dispose of in one day, in a city of Sedalia's size. The following represent a few of what remains, and the prices they will bear Monday:

$1.50 16-button length Black Silk Gloves, per pair	1.19	19c Bath Towels, per yard	12 1/2c
$1.25 16-button length Black Silk Gloves, per pair	79c	35c White Goods, per yard	19c
15c Belgrade Linen Finish Suits, per yard	8 1/2c	50c White Purses, each	15c
6 1/2c Antrim Lawns, per yard	3 1/2c	10c Linen Torchon Lace—fine for curtains, pillow cases, muslin underwear, etc., per yard	5c
8 1/2c Elite Batistes, per yard	4c	And many others not mentioned.

WERE GUILTY OF BURGLARY

Davis and Lloyd Will Not Serve Jail Sentences in Warrensburg.

The sheriff of Johnson county Friday brought to the penitentiary John Lloyd to serve three years for burglary, says the Jefferson City Tribune. Lloyd, with John Davis, was wanted here on the charge of burglary, for breaking into a Missouri Pacific car. They, with George Murphy and Frank Nolzinger, were arrested at Warrensburg, where they had stolen shoes from boxes in the car.

Nolzinger and Murphy were given six months in jail and paroled. They were arrested and brought here to answer the charge of burglary. Davis and Lloyd got three months in jail, but after the others were brought here to answer the charge of burglary and the same charge had been lodged against them here by Prosecuting Attorney Slate. Prosecuting Attorney Cockrell, of Johnson county, allowed the men to change their plea there to burglary, and Lloyd was sentenced to the penitentiary and Davis to the state training school for boys at Boonville.

Special Agent Kemp, who was prosecuting the men, declared that they broke into the car here, and if that is true the venue lay in this county and they were not liable for burglary in Johnson county. But now that they have been sentenced to the penitentiary for burglary, the charges here against them will be dismissed.

CARNIVAL OPENS MONDAY

Red Men Provide Entertainment for Sedalia at Liberty Park.

The Red Men carnival will open Monday evening at Liberty park and the indications are that the weather will be fine and if so the crowds will have a week of enjoyment such as has not been offered to them before this year, and from what we know of the committee who have charge of the carnival, everything will be handled in such a manner as to insure it to be a great success, and Mr. Le Burno, the owner of the carnival company, leaves Boonville after a week there and comes to Sedalia with a company that has had crowded tents every afternoon and night while in Boonville.

The Business Men's club, who had charge of the carnival while at Boonville, speak of Mr. Le Burno in terms of highest merit, in regard to his shows and the manner in which every show is conducted.

REGARDING RAILROADS

CLOVER LEAF IS SAID TO HAVE BOUGHT THE CHICAGO & ALTON ROAD.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

Announcement was made in New York Friday that control of the Chicago and Alton railroad has been acquired by the Toledo, St. Louis and Western, the Clover Leaf, subject to the action of the United States court at Chicago in the Standard Oil rebate case, the completion of the deal depending on Judge Landis' instructions to the grand jury, called to consider the Alton's share in the case and whose deliberations were postponed pending determination by the department of justice at Washington as to the legitimacy of the agreement upon an immunity bath.

If the bath is approved by Attorney General Bonaparte the Clover Leaf will take control of the Alton, but if rebate prosecution is insisted on there is likelihood that the financial interests concerned in the deal will decline to finish it.

With the exception of this feature the negotiations have been practically closed. The Hawley interests, controlling the Clover Leaf, have agreed to the terms of the purchase, but want to be assured that the government will not assess a $29,000,000 fine against the property after they have taken it over.

One or two other factors in the deal are somewhat indefinite, depending in part at least upon the final action in the rebate matter.

Much New Equipment.

The Missouri Pacific and Iron Mountain systems, the Frisco, the Wabash, the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, the Texas & Pacific, and the Denver & Rio Grande are receiving 37,500 new cars, and about 500 new locomotives, says Saturday's St. Louis Republic. All this new equipment will be in service this autumn for moving the crops and transporting freight.

The Wabash is receiving 10,000 new freight cars of all kinds, and 70 locomotives; the Missouri Pacific & Iron Mountain system, 9,000 cars and 135 locomotives; the Missouri, Kansas & Texas, 3,500 cars and 37 locomotives; the Frisco, 8,000 cars and 40 locomotives; the Denver & Rio Grande and the Texas & Pacific, 7,500 cars and 135 locomotives.

Most of this new equipment has already been delivered to the roads by the manufacturers, as the contracts provided that the cars and locomotives should be on hand for use this autumn. All the cars and locomotives will be in commission by the middle of next month.

Bulletin Regarding Baggage.

Supt. Alexander, of the Missouri Pacific, Saturday issued a bulletin to train conductors and baggage men, authorizing them to instruct passengers who desire to have baggage carried to points where there is no agent that they may have it done at their own risk.

When there is excess baggage, passengers must be charged for it at the regular rate, and if they refuse to pay for the excess it must be carried to the next station where there is an agent, and he must collect the amount due before he releases the same.

Claims Law Is Violated.

Prosecuting Attorney Briery, of this county, has filed information against A. J. Alexander, of Sedalia, superintendent for the Missouri Pacific, upon a charge of violation of the eight hour telegraphers' law, says the Pleasant Hill Times.

The violation specified is in regard to the Pleasant Hill office, where not the slightest attention has been paid to the new statute, which provides that telegraph operators, in offices open day and night, shall work but eight hours per day.

Station Agent Resigns.

R. L. Moore, the trusted and faithful agent for the Missouri Pacific railroad at Boonville, has tendered his resignation, to take effect the 23rd of the present month, says the Boonville Advertiser.

Mr. Moore has been in the employ of the road for twenty-nine years, and on the 23rd will have had charge of the station here for a period of twenty-five years.

Departs for Colorado.

E. P. Curtis, clerk and stenographer for Roadmaster Warren, of the Katy, resigned Saturday to accept a position in the Santa Fe superintendent's office at La Junta, Col. He left for his new place last evening. W. G. Ruffin, who has been attending school here, succeeds Mr. Curtis.

DIDN'T WANT CHURCH MOVED

Suit to That End Was Filed in the Pettis County Circuit Court.

An interesting suit was filed in the Pettis county circuit court Saturday, when Samuel Brockman and W. M. and M. A. Stadman petitioned the court to restrain Wright Lary, Samuel F. Berry, Milton Durrill, J. M. Robinson and Robert Whiggs, officers in the Ionia Christian church, of Pettis county, from moving the church a distance of three-fourths of a mile into Benton county.

Pending a hearing of the case, the plaintiffs ask that a temporary restraining order be issued, compelling the defendant to refrain from moving the church.

According to the petition, the church was built in 1888, on the land where it now stands, and since then repairs have been made with funds donated by the parishioners.

The plaintiffs state that they will be damaged to a noticeable extent should the change be made, hence their request for the restraining order.

At the regular meeting of Sedalia encampment No. 33, I. O. O. F., last night, the third degree was conferred on one candidate, after which a chicken and fish supper was held.

Superintendent A. J. Alexander, of the Missouri Pacific, Chief Clerk W. L. Pence, Trainmaster Walter Merfield and Division Engineer A. P. Morrison returned on No. 10 Saturday morning from Kansas City.

Beginning October 1, the Katy and Missouri Pacific will carry 150 pounds of baggage with every first class ticket for an adult, and seventy-five pounds for every first class child's ticket. This means in Missouri only, however.

Missouri Pacific train No. 5, due here at 5:45 p. m., arrived thirty-five minutes late Saturday evening, being detained over the Frisco railway from St. Louis to Pacific, Mo., on account of trouble on the Jefferson City division of the road.

Mrs. E. B. Gibson, of 400 West Fourth street, will entertain a company of friends at "500" at her home next Wednesday afternoon, complimentary to her daughter, Mrs. Clay Goodloe, formerly Miss Edna Gibson, one of Sedalia's most accomplished young ladies.

Time to Treat.

J. W. Rowlette, M. K. & T. painter, is off from work, suffering from a badly lacerated left hand, received by being cut by broken glass while at work at the shops Friday afternoon.

Roy Walker, a street car conductor, who fell from a car last Sunday and sustained a severe sprain of the right ankle, in addition to other bruises, was able to be down town in a buggy last night, but will not be able to resume work for some time.

C. C. Clayton, traveling accountant for the Missouri Pacific, and family, who have been visiting at Fairfield and other points in the vicinity, were here Saturday on their way home to Kansas City.

John Milnes, a Katy brakeman, is running on passenger trains, temporarily filling a vacancy left by Tom Corneliuss, who is running on through freight on the south end with Conductor Ducker.

A. Geisenhorner, formerly a machinist at the Missouri Pacific shops, now employed at the Katy shops at Parsons, removed his family to Parsons Friday night, where they will reside in future.

A VISIT TO THE ROCKIES

GEORGE M. PEMBERTON, OF SEDALIA, WRITES ENTERTAININGLY OF TRAVELS.

TO START FOR HOME NEXT MONTH

While Floating on His Back in Lake at Salt Lake City He Perused a Newspaper, and George Speaks the Truth.

Correspondence Democrat-Sentinel.

Aspen, Col., Aug. 20.—Appreciating your usually happy frame of mind and your unusually large stock of patience, I ask your indulgence in accepting this echo from the west, as I promised you before I left that I would send you a line (not a mountain lion).

I will write you of my experiences, observations and expectations while on this trip provided my strength holds out and the band doesn't slip off my mental fly wheel.

You know Shakespeare says the lunatic, the lover and the poet are full of imagination, and in order to steer clear of this trio I will try to confine myself to poets.

We left Sedalia July 25, lost some time in getting out of the city limits, but made it good by the time we reached Kansas City, and then headed straight west across the Sunflower state. I could not but help noticing the difference in the Kansas of today and what it was in 1873, when I made a trip through there.

At that time Kansas was the general distributing point for chintz bugs, grasshoppers and green headed flies. Since that she has been the battle ground of all forms of religion, temperance and politics. Then came her trials with negro equality, official corruption and Carrie's hatchet.

Sir Edward Burke said at the trial of Warren Hastings that no man could govern himself lawfully according to his own will. I don't just exactly believe that, but if it is true of individuals I suppose it is of states. Well, Kansas is a great state, and will raise enough corn and wheat this year to feed the entire American army while we lick the Japs.

Our first stop over was Pueblo, Col., where we took in the sights of that growing city, in company with our old friend and ex-chief of the Lamonte Record, Lon Luther. We then started on our journey across the grandest and most picturesque mountain range in the world, wending our way up the Arkansas river, through the Royal Gorge, the Tennessee Pass and many other notable places. I will not attempt to describe this mountain scenery, as it has already been the theme of so much prose and poetry. I could not describe it if I would, for to attempt it would be as some writer has said, simply to bankrupt the English language.

Our next stop was at Glenwood Springs, on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, 340 miles northwest of Pueblo. This is a beautiful and popular summer resort, famous for its hot springs, and a coming close second to the Hot Springs of Arkansas. From there we made a side trip forty miles southeast to Aspen, where we now are visiting our brother-in-law and sister, Judge and Mrs. T. A. Rucker.

Aspen is a prosperous and beautiful little city, with an altitude of 8,000 feet, situated in one of the prettiest and richest valleys of the Rockies, along whose side runs the seething waters of Roaring Fork. Aspen valley is bounded on either side by ranges of mountains, some 3,000 feet in height, whose record in the yield of silver ore is the pride of Colorado.

There is always plenty of work here for men who want to dig. Wish Sedalia had a few mountains for some men to dig in and thereby save our streets. From here I have made several trips into the mountains, sometimes driving and sometimes on horseback.

Not long since, in company with Judge Rucker, I started out to make the snow line of one of these "hills." Saddling up two of these mountaineer horses, which are trained to climb like sheep, we started on our journey above the clouds. After a few hours of winding and climbing and several attacks of heart failure on my part, we reached a point where my "nerve" failed, and I had to dismount.

I looked straight down into clouds, beneath whose shadow plunged the foaming waters of Castle creek, 1,500 feet below, and then the clouds let loose their rain that

"Heavily poured on the shuddering ground

And shedding a nameless horror round."

—William Cullen Bryant.

And then up from the other side of the path, which was not three feet wide, I looked up that frowning mountain, whose frosted peak seemed to be looking into the windows of the sky. After this elevated experience I went back to Glenwood Springs and boarded the Denver and Rio Grande train for that beautiful and wonderful Salt Lake City.

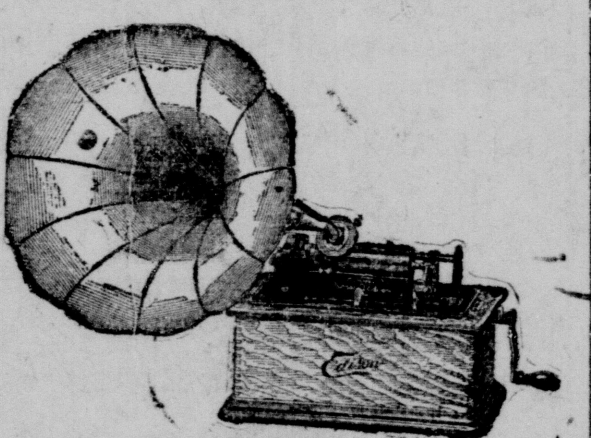

Usually this is a fourteen-hour run, but owing to a combination of accidents, we were eight hours late. Our first delay occurred near the starting point, Glenwood station. A tramp, who was riding on the top of a coach, not being acquainted with the geological arrangement of this part of the universe, came into juxtaposition with an overhanging rock, and was hurled into Grande river, dying a few minutes after being taken out.

Then for the next ninety miles we wound around, up and down, and through the mountains of Western Colorado, striking the Utah line late in the evening, with a barren desert of about 125 miles in our front. While speeding along, our progress was again impeded by the wreck of a freight train in front, causing us a six-hour delay.

Presently a waiter from the dining car announced that dinner was ready. Not being up on table vernacular, we had expected this "dinner" announcement some seven hours before. However, we made a rush for the table, and in thirty minutes it looked like there had been another wreck. We did not even think of Sam Jones when he said that a man who doesn't give thanks before he eats is 11-10 hog. The most unpleasant incident of the occasion was when we had to hand over a dollar for our "dinner." After dinner we were entertained by a man having a fit, a woman who had become intoxicated and a motherly old lady who had heart failure and who was afraid to stop talking, else she might not get started again.

Well, after so long a time, we heard the discordant, but welcome whistle of the locomotive to proceed, and then we soon reached the base of the Wastach mountains, which we ascended with the aid of three engines; then into a beautiful green valley and beside a winding stream which led us to the Mormon city, which we reached about 8 o'clock a. m.

They say a good many people come west for a change, and we have also found out that they get separated from their change if they stay out here awhile. Salt Lake City is in a most beautiful valley of the Wastach range. She has 100,000 population, a number of fine summer resorts and many costly buildings, chief among them being the post office building, erected at a cost of $600,000, the city and county building at a cost of almost $1,000,000; the Catholic church, $500,000; the Presbyterian church, $35,000, and the Knutsford hotel, $750,000.

There are twelve banks, with a capital of $2,000,000, and deposits of $35,000,000. Although this is the capital city, no state building has yet been erected, as Utah is wanting to be able to build the finest one in the Union. Her streets are 130 feet in width, nicely paved and kept clean. A double street car line runs on either side of the telephone and electric light poles, which are set in the center of the streets.

The water works is owned and controlled by the city, and the street railway and electric light system by Harriman, the railroad magnate.

The next place of interest and the greatest one is that marvelous body of salt water, the great Salt Lake, which has only one rival in the world, the Dead Sea of Galilee, and, strange as it may seem, almost a mile above sea level. This lake is about 20 per cent salt, being so strong that the human body can not sink. You may think it a little strange when I tell you while floating on my back I read a newspaper.

Trains run every forty-five minutes to Saltair beach, the most magnificent bathing resort on the beach. The pavilion is built 2,000 feet from shore, of Moorish design, and forms a monster crescent. This pavilion is 1,200 feet long and 355 feet in the widest place. The lower floor is used for a lunch and refreshment booth, with enough tables and chairs in it to accommodate 1,000 people. The upper floor is used for a dancing hall, one of the largest in the world, being 140x250 feet of clear floor, without a pillar or obstruction of any kind. Wings containing robing rooms for bathing extend on each side. The whole pavilion was built at a cost of $350,000.

The top of the main tower is 130 feet from the surface of the water. From this tower I saw the sun as it slowly hid itself behind the occidental hills of the Wastach range, and as it did so it threw out its silvery rays to kiss a fair good by to the shining waters of that beautiful lake, whose rippling waves presented a field of dancing diamonds, and then the sun left its beautiful reflection on the snow capped mountains in the background as in the language of Whittier, "It sank from sight before it set."

Now I want to tell you very briefly something of the Mormons, or the Latter Day Saints. The Temple square is the main attraction in this strange "City of Saints." In it are clustered the several edifices of the Mormon church.

Here are the huge tabernacle, the great temple and assembly hall, and but a block away the tithing house, the church officers, the Bee Hive and Lion house, the Amelia palace, the Eagle gate, and the grave of Brigham Young.

This Temple square contains ten acres of ground and is surrounded by a stone wall eight feet high, and has one opening on each side, covered by large iron gates. The temple is built of granite, is 186 feet long, ninety-nine feet wide. The height of the rock work on the east central tower is 210 feet, on the west central tower it is 204 feet and the main walls are 107 feet. The thickness of the wall varies from sixteen feet at the base to six feet at the top. The whole building, covering an area of 18,562 feet, was built at a cost of about $4,000,000. No human being, except a Mormon of the very best character, is ever allowed to set foot in the building, it being used for sacred gatherings, baptismal ceremonies, funerals, weddings and sealed marriages.

Assembly hall is built of granite, is 68x120 feet, and will accommodate 3,000 people.

The bureau of information is a large stone building, where 150,000 visitors registered last year.

In the west end of the tabernacle is situated the great organ, one of the finest in the world. It is 30x23 feet, front towers forty-eight feet high. It has 110 stops and contains over 500 pipes, ranging in length from one-fourth of an inch to thirty-two feet.

The organist is seated twenty feet from the instrument and in front of the choir, which is composed of 550 members. The tabernacle is of the greatest interest to all. It seats about 9,000 visitors, and every Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock it is filled with visitors and members from the other twenty-six Mormon churches in the city. This enormous building is 150x250 feet, almost large enough to cover one-half of our court house square, without a pillar or support of any kind inside. There are eighteen lights. I attended services there Sunday at 2 p. m. One of the apostles made the announcement that after the choir and organ recital all who wished could retire, but during the one hour's service after that all would be expected to keep their seats. As some two or three hundred left at that time, I thought of one of Pope's poems, in which he says: "Some to church repair, Not for doctrine, but the music that is there."

There are 20,000 Mormons in Salt Lake City, and all over 8 years old are members of the church. They control the state elections, but not the city.

The Mormons are a thrifty, intelligent and accommodating class of people. I saw no human curiosities among them. There are no plural marriages now, as the United States law prohibits that. However, I saw different men who had several wives, to whom they were married before this law was passed. I have not space to tell you of the Mormon religion, and will close.

We expect to start home in September, and will go via Colorado Springs, Manitou and Denver. Yours respectfully.—George M. Pemberton.

ENOX BLOCKOFF

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

New York, Aug. 24.—A fight which is attracting considerable attention among New York fight fans is that between Mike Schreck and Al Kaufmann, who are carded to go twenty rounds in San Francisco next Friday night. The Cincinnati heavyweight has many admirers on upper Broadway, and much money will likely change hands on the scrap, if any Kaufmann supporters can be found. Mike is reported to be anxious to meet Burns, and if he succeeds in defeating Kaufmann such a match will almost certainly be arranged.

That should be a pretty scrap at Milwaukee next Friday, when Steve Kinney and Maurice Sayers meet in the wind up of the Green Valley Boxing club's bluff show. Beerville match makers have been fishing for this bout for some time. Kinney is the slugger of the two, but Sayers far outpoints him in cleverness. The men will weigh in at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock.

Billy Papke, the Illinois lightweight who has never met defeat, will make his eastern debut on Labor day, when he will meet the crack New England boxer, Tommy Sullivan, in a fifteen-round engagement before the Chelsea A. C., of Lawrence, Mass.

Jack Johnson, the black heavyweight, who recently defeated a fellow named Fitzsimmons, in Philadelphia, will likely be seen in the ring at Reading, Pa., next week. Johnson has been matched to meet Sailor Burke at Bridgeport, Conn., early next month, and his Pennsylvania bout will be a sort of preliminary engagement.

John Barry is the prospective opponent of Johnson, and as he is ten pounds heavier than the big negro he should give him a close rub for the money. The colored Elks will hold their convention in Reading next week, so Johnson would likely have many supporters in the audience. Barry is a young fellow, but has already met and defeated such men as Jack Blackburn, George Cole, Jimmy Handler, Kid Cutler and Fred Bradley.

Unk Russell, the Quaker City fighter, is slated to meet Indian Joe Gregg for fifteen rounds at Peoria, Ill., on Labor day. Russell has been in training for some time and should give a good account of himself.

Mike Newman, manager of the Long Acre Athletic club, who went to England a few weeks ago to study the methods of the National Sporting club, of London, is now on his way home, and will arrive next Tuesday. While the mother country hasn't any fighters worth mentioning, Newman says the conduct of its sporting club is far superior.

Among the sporting events scheduled for the coming week are the following:

Monday—Preliminary practice in national rifle tournament at Camp Perry, Ohio. Annual championship tournament of the Western Women's Golf association opens on the Midlothian links at Chicago. Annual tournament of the Dominion Rifle association begins at Ottawa. International and Canadian championship tennis tournament will begin at the Queen's Royal court, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont. Grand circuit race meet opens at Providence, R. I.

Tuesday—Park View stakes, the largest ever offered, $5,000, in the free-for-all pacing class, will be the feature of the grand circuit harness meet at Providence, R. I. Great Western trotting circuit meet opens in Dubuque, Ia. Annual regatta of the Western Association of Power Boat Builders will begin on the Illinois river, near Peoria.

Wednesday—National Rifle matches, in which teams and individuals from forty states and from the army, navy and marine corps will participate, begins at Camp Perry, Port Clinton, O.

Thursday—Four days' racing meeting for hunters and steeplechasers, with gentlemen riders, begins at Pimlico track, Baltimore, under the auspices of the United Hunters' clubs of Maryland. Racing meeting in connection with Michigan state fair begins at Detroit.

Friday—Saratoga racing meet closes.

Saturday—Opening of the autumn meeting of the Montreal Jockey club. Racing meet of the Coney Island Jockey club begins at Sheepshead track. Central Amateur Athletic union's championships will be held Marshall field, Chicago.

IN THE 'TERMINAL ROOM'

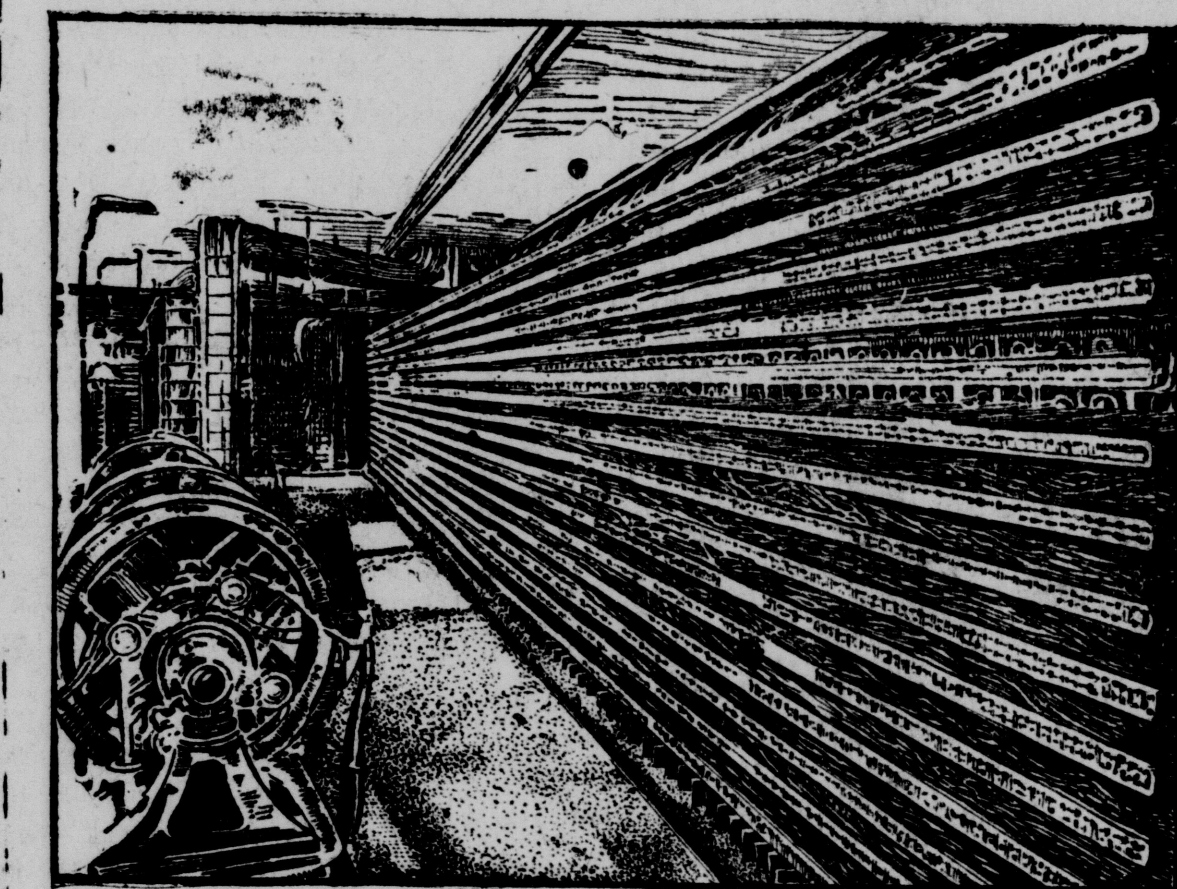

THE REMARKABLE APPARATUS OF THE MODERN TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

THOUSANDS OF MILES OF WIRE

These Have Hundreds of Thousands of Connections, All in a Single Room—How Circuits Are Distributed.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Boston, Aug. 24.—There is a mysterious whispering gallery, maybe just around the corner from your office or in a quiet side street not far from your home, where, every hour of the liveliest day, flows the current of talk from hundreds of lips, but there is never a sound to break the stillness. A score of times in the last week, probably, your own voice has flitted through this silent chamber, yet the chances are that you have never even suspected its existence.

THE HEART OF THE TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

Main Distributing Frame, With Its Thousands of Miles of Wire Connections, by Means of Which the Outside Lines Are Brought Into the Switchboard—Dynamos for Charging the Common Battery—Behind These Stands the Intermediate Frame.

to say nothing of having stepped within its doors. For this is the important but most unknown region of the telephone exchange called the "terminal room."

Most people picture "central" as an office in which a number of young women sit before a switchboard deftly joining into continuous threads the myriad strands of copper that are the web and woof of the telephone system. That is only part of the exchange, though—a very necessary part, to be sure, but one that by itself would be of little service. The apparatus auxiliary to the switchboard is one of the most essential features of the telephone system, and this is located in the terminal room.

The terminal room gets its name from the fact that it terminates all the circuits of the exchange. If it were possible to run the wires from the subscribers' telephones and the "trunk" circuits between central offices directly into the switchboard it would simplify matters enormously.

As a matter of fact, though, it is not possible to do any such thing. There are two distinct requirements in operating an exchange: the first has to do with answering the calls of telephone users and taking their orders, while the second is concerned in calling other telephone users connected with the same office or with distant offices, and establishing communication between any two "stations," as the engineers call subscribers' telephones. Obviously an operator can take orders from only a limited number of lines; whether the number is 10, 50 or 100 depends upon how much each line is used. By constant observation the "load" on each operator is carefully adjusted in all Bell exchanges to make sure that no young woman has more to look after than she can do properly and maintain the Bell standards of service. But every operator must have within her reach means of connecting any of the lines on which she answers with any of the thousands of lines that give communication with other subscribers in the same exchange or are used for "trunking" calls for other exchanges.

While there is but one circuit from the central office to each subscriber there must be, then, two distinct sets of terminal points in the switchboard for each subscriber's line. With the extraordinary growth of the telephone system and the steady increase in its use the exchange must have such flexibility, so to call it, that the innumerable changes going on all the time—changes caused by the removal of a subscriber from one part of the city to another by his giving up one class of service to take a better class, by sudden increases in the traffic on certain individual lines, and so on—can be made quickly, conveniently and economically. The terminal room takes care of all these complications. In it the outside circuits and the two different sets of switchboard circuits—those used for answering and those for calling—are brought together in such an ingenious way that the connections may be shifted almost in an instant, while every circuit in the office is made accessible for testing in case of "trouble" and for repair.

In all the central offices of the Bell system newly constructed or remodelled during the past few years the outside lines are brought into the exchange building in cables. Even in small places, where the wires to subscribers' houses and offices are strung on poles, the circuits are brought together at a "terminal pole" outside the exchange and put into cable form. Where the wires are underground the conduit system centers at the central office building, coming from all directions to a tunnel beneath the street where the cables are suspended one above another along the side walls and led into the basement, from which they are carried to the terminal room through a chute or shaft. In the terminal room the cables are you may ask for. The other is the "intermediate frame" where connection is made with the circuits to the answering terminals in the board. At the outer side of the main frame are the "heat coils"—little cylinders of metal held in place by brass springs which would expand and drop out, thus breaking the circuit if an overload of electricity got onto the outside wires from some high tension line, power, light, traction, or whatnot. The heat coils thus protect the sensitive and costly apparatus of the exchange against injury by foreign current.

At the other side of the main frame are the junctions of the switchboard circuits. Between the two sides are flexible "jumper" wires by means of which any inside circuit and any outside circuit may be connected into one simply by soldering the opposite ends of the same "jumper" to both. There are thousands of these tiny soldered connections in the main frame and thousands of others in the intermediate frame, which is similar in construction. So methodically is the whole arranged and marked with the regular line numbers that at any point in the terminal room a given circuit may be picked out instantly and the seeming maze of wires traversed without danger of straying.

Beyond the frames is a third rack on which are set the ingenious "relays" that operate the electric lamp signals in the switchboard. These are enclosed in numbered japanned boxes arranged tier upon tier, each subscriber's line having its own relay—a delicately adjusted little device that works with wonderful precision, its electrical coils wound with wire finer, insulation and all, than ordinary sewing cotton, and so attuned that it takes four miles of it to weigh a pound. Near the relay rack is the ringing machine that puts the power into the lines to ring a subscriber's bell when an operator depresses the proper key. And at one side are the dynamos for charging the storage battery that supplies all the current for both talking and signaling for the entire system—whence the name "common battery," applied to the method of operating the Bell exchanges now employed in most large places.

It is all very wonderful, this mass of apparatus working slightly and incessantly, made up of hundreds of thousands of different parts and connections, full of minute adjustments, yet performing its functions with more perfect accuracy, perhaps, than any other sort of an industrial plant. A glance at it explains why building a telephone exchange takes months and sometimes a couple of years.

part-colored cords. One of these racks is known as the "main distributing frame" and is the means of connecting the outside circuits with the proper terminal points in the "multiple" of the switchboard through which the operators call whomever

Practically everything must be actually constructed on the spot where it is to stand as long as its usefulness endures. The switchboard is literally built up of hundreds of thousands of little strips of wood laid one upon the other, each strip containing 15 or 20 separate wire connections. The distributing frame and the intermediate frame have thousands of miles of wire, every foot of which must be laid in place, soldered, and tested out with the most exact care to suit the requirements of the individual exchanges. And the relays, though they come from the big factory of the Bell system complete in themselves, represent perhaps the most painstaking work of all, being the most sensitive detail of the central office equipment.

It is not surprising when you think of the intricacy of the telephone plant, to learn that during 1906 alone the expenditure of the Bell companies as a whole for exchanges was within a few thousands of $60,000,000, leaving out the cost of land and buildings and the cost of maintenance, including the repairing of the outside lines, but not including any new construction, was close to $33,000,000.

IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles—A Sedalia Citizen Shows How to Cure Them. Cure Them.

Many persons never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary troubles set in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is just where the danger lies. You must cure these troubles or they lead to diabetes or Bright's disease. The best remedy to use is Doan's Kidney Pills. It cures all ills which are caused by weak or diseased kidneys. Sedalia people testify to permanent cures.

L. H. Oswald, living north of the cemetery, Sedalia, Mo., says: "I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, for I know that they helped me. Whenever I caught cold or in damp weather my kidneys would get out of order, too frequent in action, and this disturbed my rest at night. I am a poor hand to take medicine, but as I read about Doan's Kidney Pills curing others of similar troubles and that they could be procured at the W. E. Bard drug store, I got a box and began taking them, and you are welcome to use my name as one of the many people here in Sedalia who can vouch for the merits of your valuable medicine."

For sale by all Dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AMUSEMENTS

"Fatty Felix" at Wood's Tonight.

The new cartoon musical comedy which shows at Wood's opera house tonight has created a favorable impression with the city critics, who have nothing but words of praise for the production. The company has been playing to crowded houses in surrounding territory. Music that is music, songs that are songs—in fact, a comedy that is a comedy. A roar of laughter from the rise of the curtain until the last song is sung. It gets away from the old-style melodrama, where they have the blood-thirsty villain, and the hair-raising adventures of the hero.

"Fatty Felix" does none of these stunts as he believes in the old saying, "laugh and grow fat." And those who will be fortunate enough to see him will go away with the same impression. The scrapes that Fatty gets into will cause many to remember him with bright smiles.

Don't accept a cough remedy that you may be told is just as good as Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup, because it isn't just as good—there is quite a difference. Kennedy's Laxative Cough Syrup acts gently upon the bowels and clears the whole system of coughs and colds. It promptly relieves inflammation of the throat and allays irritation. Sold by Arlington Pharmacy.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS' WORK

DR. G. L. SHEPARD, CO. SUPT.-NO. 26.

In the article published May 23rd we extended a general invitation to Sunday school workers to give what in the estimation of each were the five most important points to be considered in the conduct of a Sunday school. About the same time we made special request of more than fifty, including pastors, superintendents and teachers. We have received thirty-three answers, all of them of a high degree of excellence. Our main purpose in these questions has been to direct careful thought of all Sunday school workers who may see these articles, that we may all more fully realize our greatest needs in this work, and then make a united effort to the betterment of every Sunday school in Sedalia during the next few months.

We hope to have brief papers from quite a large number of our Sunday school workers to be presented at the monthly meetings of our Sunday school union, and feel assured that they will be helpful to the writer, to the Sunday school union meetings and to the general cause.

We have found it almost impossible to prepare an exact summary of the points contained in the thirty-three replies that we have received, but have gone over them several times carefully, and with the following result. We give as nearly as possible the names of points mentioned and number of times they were considered in the replies received:

Punctuality and regularity.....	22
Qualified teachers.....	22
Qualified superintendent.....	17
Good music.....	16
Consecration.....	14
The teachers' meeting.....	7
Equipment, rooms, maps, etc.....	7

They Say

That Charlie Botz still shudders every time he calls to mind the narrow escape he had.

That a divorce in a south end home would be a big improvement on the hell that now exists.

That Lon Ware denies that he is to deliver an address at the Dunksburg picnic in September.

That Dr. George A. Major is a pretty fair shot, but when it comes to winging wasps he is down and out.

That Elmer Young's question about the dog could not be satisfactorily answered by the friend on the street car last week.

That when it comes to "holding the fort," Frank E. Gibbons and Dan A. Fults make an ace-high pair at the Western Union office.

That several young men who will need new overcoats this winter are already wishing they had saved more of their summer wages.

That Clarence Albora's four-pound home-grown tomato holds the local record, so far as the Democrat-Sentinel has been able to learn.

That A. A. Crooks knows at precisely what hour in the afternoon he will find his two old comrades "lined up" in front of "Billy" Brown.

That "Bob" Carroll was over anxious to turn in the five pennies handed him one day the past week as fare for a lady and three children.

That John L. Sullivan wishes he had refrained from telling his friends where he was going when he made a short visit at Montrose recently.

That Jake Brandt's suggestion in favor of Tuesday as "Sedalia day" at the state fair appears to meet with general favor in business circles.

That Jerry Green, Julius Kolbaba and Will Paul all smoke the same brand of cigar—the "A. O. K.," which, interpreted, means, "Any old kind."

That John Hegarty and Pete Kohn will have their best girls from Benton county as their guests at the Red Men's carnival at least four nights this week.

That it is a hundred to one shot that the third man foots the bill when Charlie Ernst and Noah Rogers can induce a friend to match aikeis for the cigar.

That Johnnie Wright, the popular Missouri Pacific baggagemaster, lost two mighty good old-timers when Cook Duncan and Edgar Holland quit the "snack."

That Carl Werner said not a word, but "smiled" instead, when he read in the Democrat-Sentinel that the city council had allowed his long overdue plumbing bill.

That interesting details incident to the kissing of a lady clerk in an Ohio street store are known by outsiders and may yet furnish a second story for the local press.

That there is to be another so-called "surprise marriage" in Sedalia next month, but it will not occasion as much surprise as the parties interested now imagine.

That the fat woman at the Economy street fair not only won the admiration of Joe Quinn the past week, but a number of his friends think she also captured his heart.

That Charlie Turnham slept under a blanket each night when he was in Colorado, but on his return to Sedalia he found even so much as a cheese cloth uncomfortable.

That when a branch postoffice is established in East Sedalia, as now seems probable, the cup of happiness of Will J. Letts and Otis W. Smith will be filled to overflowing.

That with Labor day on September 2d and German-American day on September 18, Sedalia is certain of two great holidays next month, provided the weather is propitious.

That those who are asserting that the present municipal administration has done nothing for Sedalia have apparently lost sight of the fact that the dogs have been muzzled.

That Charlie Daugherty has worried not a little about the poor man who was tied under the ice house in North Sedalia one night recently and kept there for thirty-six hours.

That all of the people in town are not blind, even if a certain professional man and a married woman whose home is not far distant from his office are of a different opinion.

That the state of Colorado is always attractive at this season of the year, but never before did it possess as many attractions for J. E. Brennan, owner of the Capital, as now.

That John McLaughlin has missed George McKown's great fishing yarns the past few weeks, but what has been his loss has been the gain of the residents of the Keystone state.

That the young girl thought the $7 pair of garters as a birthday remembrance from a gentleman friend was all right, hence the rumpus when her mother compelled her to return them.

That Sheriff Sprecher has many good news items which would be of interest if he would only permit the newspapers to print them, instead of invariably asking that nothing be printed.

That Dr. Charles McNeil was not in the least excited last Wednesday morning when one of his fever patients escaped from the Katy hospital and caused a sensation on East Broadway.

That the cheap shows at the Air-dome have drawn so well this summer that Messrs. Olendorf and Hall almost regret the coming of the time when a dollar ticket will supplant a ten-cent ticket.

That all efforts to induce the Rev. Fr. Christian Daniel, who with a target rifle killed a cat at a single shot recently, to participate in the weekly shoots of the Sedalia Gun club, have proved unavailing.

That it is one thing to promise to a newspaper the first announcement of a "surprise marriage," but to deliver the goods is quite another thing, as was demonstrated in Sedalia the past week.

That the "rock pile" was bad enough, but Dan Fults' yelling dog has it skinned a country block, according to Will Crawford's way of thinking, even if the old red lantern should be thrown in.

That "Uncle Dave" Lindsay has less use for corporations now than ever before, but he denies that the retirement of J. H. Rathbun as local manager of the Bell Telephone Co. has anything to do with it.

That Howard Wood and Jim Card will have many interesting tales to relate to Detectives O'Hare and Shenck, who are to assist the local police force in suppressing crime during the week of the state fair.

That "things are not what they used to be," remarked "Billy" Moore, the old-time sport, as he discussed with Frank Holdner and "Aunt Joe" Steehn the abolishing of cards and dice in saloons one day the past week.

That it is five years this month since "Dockery" Harris ran across the "two beauties" at the state fair grounds, the first publication of which in these columns called for many explanations to "Dockery's" lady friends.

That Frank McGinley's friends were not a little surprised at his painting the lawn benches orange color instead of green, but they excuse him on the ground that his mind was with his heart—at Excelsior Springs, and not in Sedalia.

That if Judge Bosserman should ever be so fortunate as to catch a three-foot German carp, weighing 16 pounds, as did Geo. W. Pope, the electrician, a few days ago, he (the judge) would be the happiest man in Pettis county, bar none.

That Al Baumgartner forgot all about having sold out his barber shop a week ago yesterday and he reported at 6:55 a. m. last Monday for work just the same as he has done for the last eighteen years, only to get the horse laugh from the gang.

That another sensation concerning a business man of the city is brewing, and both lady and gentlemen friends who are "next" are anxiously awaiting the climax which is sure to come, judging from a previous sensation that was partially quited.

That the arrest and prosecution of those who rent property for immoral purposes will do more to free Sedalia of bawds than all else combined; but while getting rid of them let's also fire the male prostitutes, who live off of the earnings of these women.

That the new $20,000 school building of Sacred Heart parish will be dedicated by Bishop Lillis, of Kansas City, Kas., four weeks from today, on September 22d, and it will certainly be a proud day for the Rev. Fr. Neiberg and Col. Joseph Lennartz.

That a former chairman of the Pettis county democratic central committee is now representative and country circulator of the leading republican county paper and talks republicanism with as much earnestness as he formerly preached democracy.

That Alderman Grant Crawford, who is now in the wilds of Colorado, would give a good cigar if he could be at Sixteenth and Kentucky streets this morning and hear the shrill whistle of "Roxy" Roach's or Lon Snow's engine bringing a Katy train into town.

That Charlie Maggard, the blacksmith, who captured the blue ribbon at the state fair last year with his exhibit of wholly hand-made tools pertaining to his trade, will be on hand again this fall, and the individual who bests him will have to go some.

That Walter Kennedy, "Dinky" Deader, "Doc" Caldwell and "Len" Johnson all admit that the dancing was the most artistic they ever witnessed, and each feels that it would prove a great attraction at the coming state fair, provided it was properly advertised.

That Dr. Howard is a great admirer of a good dog, especially of the shepherd variety, but he had the scare of his life over one of the animals the past week, regarding which incident either Holmes Hall or Harvey Dow can furnish all of the "agonizing details."

That Mr. Behrens, press representative of the Federation of Labor, and Mr. Cundiff, editor of the Capital, are old-time leaders and toilers in the ranks of organized labor, and each predicts the greatest Labor day celebration in the city's history on Monday, September 2.

That Ira T. Bronson, Jr., night clerk at the postoffice, is emphatic in the declaration that he saw a comet with a huge tail at 3 o'clock a. m. a few days ago, but his disgust may be imagined when Leo Harris and John McGaw wanted to know what he had been drinking.

That if there is to be any watermelon-eating contest this season between Herman Klink and Bob Rose it is about time Dave Suhler was completing the arrangements for pulling it off, as Andy Shobe desires to sell pools on the event, provided Gov. Folk's "lid" does not bar him.

That the morning newspaper artist who doesn't have "all of the exchanges of the Central West to clip from" should exhibit as a curiosity at the state fair at least one copy of the Kansas City Star after the aforesaid artist has prepared a "press report" for his "Morning Behind."

That the supreme court of Missouri has decided that the issuing of a marriage license is a public record, and as such the press is entitled to it when issued, but it looks as if Pettis county was to have four more years of overruling the state's highest court when the request is made to "keep it dark."

That since his removal to the country Col. H. C. Demuth has become a typical granger, and he estimates that in the past month he has "snagged" himself no less than "seven times by coming in contact with barbed wire, while he has bruised and lacerated his flesh twice that many times in other ways.

That a certain South Sedalia Miss was greatly embarrassed last Wednesday night when her beau did not show up at the usual time to fill an engagement, but embarrassment changed to disgust when the beau's mother, unconcerned, said her son was slumbering peacefully at home and had undoubtedly forgotten the engagement.

MALARIA

A SYSTEMIC BLOOD POISON

UNDERMINES THE HEALTH—LAYS THE FOUNDATION FOR DISEASE

Malaria comes from the absorption into the blood of germs and microbes which destroy the rich, nutritive qualities of the circulation and reduce it to a weak, watery, disease-spreading stream. The healthy color of the skin is given to it by the millions of little red corpuscles which are in the blood. These are the carriers of nourishment and health to all parts of the body; in other words the very life and vitalizing essence of the circulation. The destruction of these corpuscles by the malarial poison takes the color from the cheek, and in the first stages of Malaria we have pale, sallow faces, poor appetite, a bilious condition is set up, and we feel "out of sorts" generally. But Malaria means more than this; it is a systemic blood poison, which undermines the health and gives rise to innumerable and sometimes serious disorders and diseases if the poison is allowed to remain in the blood. As the blood becomes more and more polluted with the malarial poison, the digestion becomes deranged, chills and fever are frequent, skin diseases, boils and carbuncles, and sores and ulcers break out on the flesh, and after awhile the foundation is laid for other diseases which either prove fatal or permanently undermine and wreck the health. Malaria can only be worked out of the system through the blood. Purging the liver and bowels with strong, nauseating cathartics can never remove the trouble because they do not reach the blood where the germs are constantly multiplying. The only hope for a cure is a remedy that can destroy the germs and microbes, and neutralize the bad effects of the poison, and S. S. S. is the medicine to accomplish this, because it is a perfect blood purifier and a general systemic remedy of unequalled value. S. S. S. searches out and removes every trace of the malarial poison and puts the blood in such rich, healthy condition that sallow, anaemic complexions take on the ruddy glow of health, the liver and digestion are righted, the appetite improved, the system vitalized and strengthened, and every symptom of Malaria passes away. Malarial persons will find S. S. S. not only a prompt remedy but a gentle, pleasant acting one, as well as a certain cure for this disease. Besides removing the cause of Malaria S. S. S. builds up every part of the system by its fine tonic effects. Persons living in a malarial section should, at this season, fortify their systems against this insidious disease by purifying their blood with a course of S. S. S. Book on the blood and any medical advice desired sent free of charge.

I SAW A GREAT BALL GAME

Hon. E. E. Johnston Witnessed Pitching of "Rube" Waddell.

E. E. Johnston is home from Chicago, where he spent the past week on business. While at the Windy City he witnessed a ball game between Chicago and Philadelphia, in which the famous "Rube" Waddell officiated for the Phillies.

"This was the first game of baseball I have had the opportunity to see since the Western association team was transferred from here," said Mr. Johnston, "and I couldn't resist. A friend of mine in Chicago purchased tickets a day ahead for us, and we caught a box directly back of the catcher. None of 'Rube's' twisters, and I suspect he had everything in that line, escaped me.

"The rooting was fierce. It reminded me very much of the days when the 500 or more fans in Sedalia would assemble at Liberty park and pull for the home boys. There were 15,000 people at the game, and the shouts that went up from this multitude was enough to make the dead sit up and notice, but old 'Rube' never flinched and he appeared to work as if none other than his teammates were around. 'Rube' is certainly a wonder."

Mr. Johnston said he did not see Reulbach, known here as "Bob Lawson," but he said he was told that Reulbach was not with the team at present on account of the death of an infant, born a week or so ago to Mr. and Mrs. Reulbach.

PLAN REIGN OF TERROR

"REDS" ARE ASSEMBLING IN AMSTERDAM FOR THAT PARTICULAR OBJECT.

AMERICA IS TO BE REPRESENTED

Large Proportion of the Delegates Are Men of Apparent Culture and Education, With Linguists Among Them.

Special to the Democrat-Sentinel.

Amsterdam, Aug. 24.—While distinguished men of all nations are gathered at the Hague to talk of peace, Amsterdam is soon to be the scene of another international congress, which has for its object the inauguration of a reign of terror. Grim, silent men are secretly gathering in Amsterdam today by the hundreds and on Monday will begin a world-wide anarchist conference, bent on discussing the best methods of destroying established governments and reaffirming their deadly hatred of all who sit upon a throne.

From America and from far away Australia and Japan they have come, as well as from England and every nation of continental Europe. A large proportion of the delegates are men of apparent culture and educational attainments, many of them scholars and linguists of ability, and bear slight resemblance to the popular conception of bearded, unkempt "reds." Among the more notable are Dr. Friedberg, the Berlin savant; John Turner, of London, who a few years ago was barred from landing in the United States; Malatesta, the scholarly but militant leader of the Italian group; M. Duncis, of Paris, and scores of others equally well known to the police of Europe.

While all the deliberations of the congress will be secret, it is stated that death warrants will be issued for the "execution" of several European monarchs, including Czar Nicholas, Kaiser Wilhelm, Victor Emmanuel and King Leopold, of Belgium. King Edward, who is known to the continental group as the "anarchists' friend," because of the refuge England has given to the outlawed revolutionists who have been driven from other European nations, is said not to be included in the death list. The English policy while strongly denounced by the rulers of other countries, has at least saved its own monarchs from the reds' wrath.

The purposes of the congress, as set forth in the summons of the European groups, are as follows:

The spread of the anarchistic propaganda among all nations; the formulation of a list of condemned rulers whose assassination is held to be desirable in the interests of humanity and social solidarity; the perfection of the secret department of the movement, as a protection against the machinations of the secret police; the inauguration of an educational campaign to bring the people of all nations to a knowledge of the anarchist ideals, and the drawing of lots to determine the honor of assassinating those whose deaths have been decreed.

The provisional program to govern the deliberations of the congress provides for speeches on "The Necessity of Permeating Trades Unions With Anarchistic Doctrines," the speeches on this subject including K. Monatte, of Paris, and John Turner, of London.

"The Organization of a Simultaneous General Strike in All Trades and in All European Nations" will be considered by Dr. Friedberg, of Berlin, and K. Malatesta, the Italian anarchist, who is now a resident of London.

Reports on "An International Organization of Anarchists With a View to Bringing About Simultaneous Revolutions in Europe" will be presented by M. Duncis, of Paris, and M. Thonar, of Liege.

M. Maranda, of Paris, and Peter Ramus, of London, will read papers on "Methods Which Should Be Employed to Propagate Anarchism Among the Standing Armies of Germany, Russia and Other Countries." Ramus will also deliver an address on "Anarchism in Its Relation to Modern Literature."

A committee of Russian nihilists will present a report, embracing such lessons as they have learned in fighting the czar's bureaucracy. This will be followed by a discussion on "The Possibility and Practicability of Introducing the Bloodthirsty Methods Widely Practiced in Russia Into Other European countries."

Despite the secrecy used by the anarchists in spreading the call for the congress, and in safeguarding their plans and projects, the authorities of Holland have become well acquainted with their plans, and the necessary measures have been taken to co-operate with the police spies of other countries in ferreting out the bloody projects of the reds.

As a result of the congress, the body guards of every European monarch have been reinforced, and redoubled vigilance will be used in attempting to prevent any murderous attack on kings or emperors. It is not likely that any attempt will be made to suppress the congress, as the authorities consider it better to depend on their secret spies to get information of the plans of the anarchists.

Will Dedicate a Church.

Rev. S. S. Martin, pastor of the First M. E. church, was a passenger to Warsaw Saturday afternoon, and today will preach the sermon on the occasion of the dedication of the new M. E. church there.

LIVED IN SEDALIA THEN

LOUIE M. JACOBS GROWS REMINISCENT AT HIS HOME IN CHICAGO.

HE SOLD GOODS HERE MANY YEARS

Was Dramatic Critic for the Old Sedalia Democrat, When John D. Russell Was the Hustling Business Manager.

Louie M. Jacobs, formerly of Jacobs Bros., clothiers of Sedalia, but now city salesman in Chicago for Celestino Vega & Co., successors to A. Straus & Co., manufacturers of fine cigars, 232-234 East Randolph street, in that city, writes the Democrat-Sentinel as follows under date of August 22:

To the Democrat-Sentinel.

"J. W. G., presumably my old friend, J. West Godwin, in his 'Story of Old Sedalia,' printed in the Democrat-Sentinel of the 18th, puts me in a reminiscent mood, as I was a resident of Sedalia in the rosy days he speaks of, when the town and we were young and less discriminate in what it took to amuse us.

Everyone he speaks of was perfectly familiar, and I can see them distinctly in my mind's eye as I mentally view the scenes of years gone by, when we all mingled in unrestrained acquaintanceship.

It does not seem so long ago, but when my heart goes out to my little grandson, when he comes toddling to me in happy greeting, and the mirror reflects a whitening crest, I am gently reminded that time does not stand still.

That baby grandson is my son Siegfried's child, who was himself a baby in Sedalia, and afterwards learned to set type on the old Sedalia Democrat and has subsequently become a swift linotype operator, been successful, and is now the president of the Central Typesetting Co. here.

About that time I used to be pleasantly associated with the Democrat staff, writing amusements for it, even before the advent of Wood's opera house, when Smith's hall was the exclusive theatre, and Charlie Lyon, who long since joined the silent majority, and George Brown, the proprietor of the old livery house, the Missouri Pacific hotel, were its managers.

Charlie did the hustling, and I will recall his methods of bookkeeping. After settling with the attraction at 70 or 75 per cent, after the show, he put the rest of the receipts in a cigar box, paid his bills, and what remained was profit.

My fondest memory goes out to some of the profession I have met there. I knew of their early struggles and rejoice in their subsequent success. James Herne, of sainted memory, had a tussle to get out of Sedalia on one of his professional visits, but he grew to be a strong and prosperous city attraction before he died.

Minnie Maddern, now Mrs. Fiske, has grown to an international reputation.

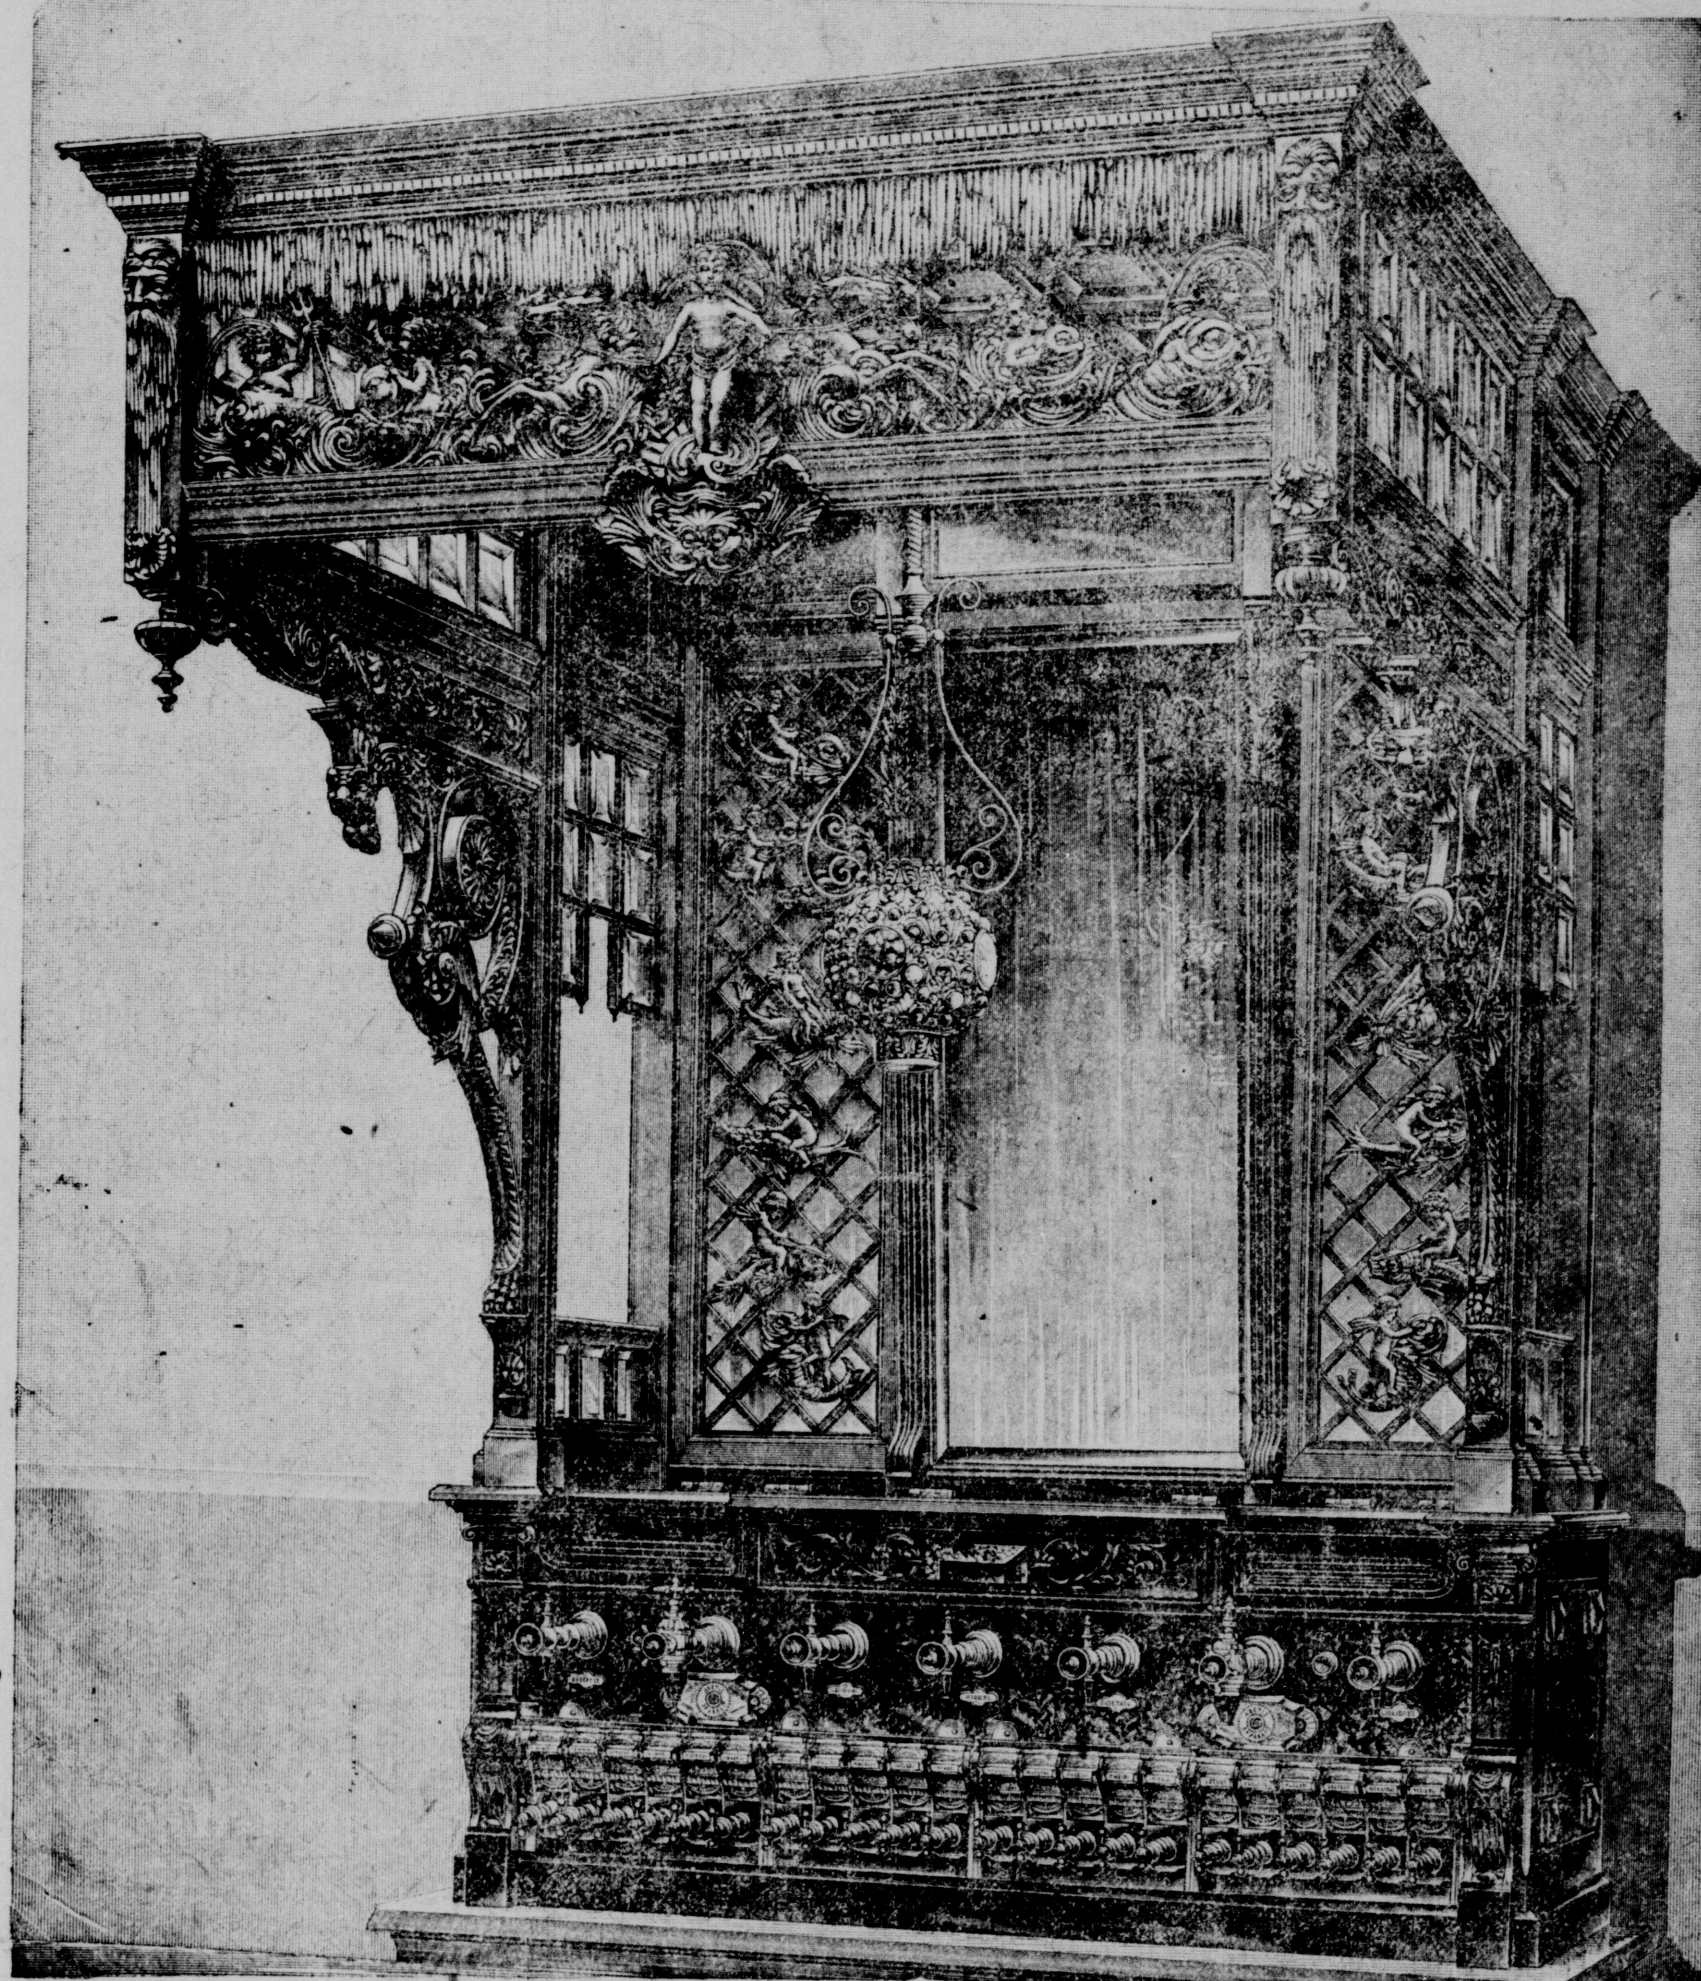

John Favershaw, supporting her in "Caprice" (and an excellent entertainment it was) during one of her Sedalia visits, is now and has been for some time, one of Frohman's popular stars.

Edwin Sothern, then playing his departed father's "Lord Dundreary," working to win the public on the latter's reputation, with indifferent success, needs ask no odds now of anybody on his own merit, and others I might mention, but the list is too long, as my Sedalia recollections cover years. Greetings to the old timers.

Painter Busy.

The painters are getting busy with many jobs of painting. Much property not painted last spring, owing to the late and wet season, is being taken care of now for winter's protection.

Sedalia Orator to Be There.

A pamphlet announcing the grand opening sale of the Powell Mule and Horse company at San Antonio, Tex., concludes with the following paragraph:

"Col. C. J. Hieronymus, of Sedalia, Mo., will be the auctioneer, and it is worth a thousand mile ride to see and hear this silvery tongued orator on horse."

"We never regret of eating too little," was one of the ten rules of life of Thomas Jefferson, president of the United States, and the rule applies to every one without exception during this hot weather because it is hard for food, even in small quantities, to be digested when the blood is at high temperature. At this season we should eat sparingly and properly. We should also help the stomach as much as possible by the use of a little Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, which will rest the stomach by digesting the food itself. Sold by Arlington Pharmacy.

Will Have Street Cars, Anyhow.

It is rumored that the Missouri Pacific and Katy will not operate their shuttle trains to and from the fair grounds on Monday of state fair week this year, as the attendance on the initial day of the fair does not defray the expenses of running the trains.

Piles get quick and certain relief from Dr. Shoop's Magic Ointment. Please note it is made alone for piles, and its action is positive and certain. Itching, painful, protruding or blood piles disappear like magic by its use. Large nickel-capped glass jars 50c. Sold by W. E. Bard Drug Co.

Bought a Racket Store.

J. B. May, of Sedalia, has bought the Parker racket store at Lamonte and he and his wife are in charge. The business is one of the best in Lamonte, and with increased stock put in by the new management the trade will no doubt increase.

THE REUNION CLUB PICNIC

Tack Supper Friday Evening in Grove at Walter Morey's.

The Reunion club had a delightful outing in the beautiful grove on the Walter Morey farm, northwest of Sedalia, Friday afternoon and evening, the hostesses being the following club members: Misses Mary Harris, Susan Thomson, Sallie and Anna May Major, Wilhelme Bouldin, Mary and Bessie Eowers.

The guests of the club were Misses Irene Broadbent, of Bunceon, and Nelle Heffron, of Indianapolis, and Messrs. David Thomson, Joe Ford, Dr. R. E. Broadbent, Dr. N. U. Howard and Dr. Don J. Lounsbury.

The party journeyed to the Morey farm on a hay wagon, passed a truly enjoyable afternoon, partook of an appreciated moonlight supper and returned home before midnight.
